The only members absent were Mr. Leonard Wagar, Reeve, and Mr. Brown, Deputy Reeve of Sheffield.

THE CLERK called the Council to order and asked the members to elect a Warden, which, upon motion, was proceeded with, by ballot, Messrs. W. F. Hall and F. Burrows assisting in the count.

Before the vote was taken Mr. Files announced that he was not a candidate for the Wardenship.

The ballot resulted as follows: B. C. Lloyd 12; R. S. Dennison, 4; John Sharp, 2; Capt. Polly, 1.—19.

THE CLERK announced Mr. Lloyd duly elected and he was escorted to the chair by Mr. Dennison and the oath of office was administered by His Honor Judge Wilkison.

Messrs. Wagar and Brown entered and took their seats.

THE WARDEN then addressed the Council returning thanks for the honor conferred upon him, which he considered was enhanced by a provision of the McCarthy Act which constitutes him a member of the Board of License Commissioners. He pointed out that it would be necessary to provide for $40,000 debentures which are nearly due—$20,000 in August and $20,000 in February of next year. It would be necessary to float new debentures to retire the old. In conclusion, he suggested that the Council make their appropriations at this session and ob-

The ballot resulted as follows: B. C. Lloyd 12; R. S. Dennison, 4; John Sharp, 2; Capt. Polly, 1.—19.

Messrs. Wagar and Brown entered and took their seats.

THE WARDEN then addressed the Council returning thanks for the honor conferred upon him, which he considered was enhanced by a provision of the McCarthy Act which constitutes him a member of the Board of License Commissioners. He pointed out that it would be necessary to provide for $40,000 debentures which are nearly due—$20,000 in August and $20,000 in February of next year. It would be necessary to float new debentures to retire the old. In conclusion, he suggested that the Council make their appropriations at this session and obviate the necessity of a March session. (Applause.)

Moved by Mr. Perry, seconded by Mr. Parks, that as the Council have determined to hold a meeting in March, that the salary of councillors be reduced to $2 per day.

Considerable discussion arose as to the advisability of reducing the indemnity, in which a general opinion was expressed that $2 a day was not sufficient to pay the expenses of members while here, especially those from a distance. Some, however, maintained that $3 a day was too much, and as a growing opinion was prevalent among almost all the ratepayers of the county that the councillors were getting extravagant they thought it advisable to reduce the pay. In the midst of the discussion a motion was made to adjourn till 2 p. m., which was carried.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Council resumed at 2 p. m. pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. SEXTON presented the first report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, which recommended that on the account of Mr. Cornelius Carroll for damage to his mare on the county road back of Selby, amounting to $130, the sum of $108 be granted, and in case that sum is refused, that a defence be entered in court. After a lengthy discussion the report was adopted.

Messrs. Henwood, Gibbard and Wallace, members of the Street Committee of Napanee Council appeared as a deputation. Mr. Henwood, chairman, stated that the swing bridge was in such a bad condition that it was necessary to have a new structure. The bridge had been repaired from year to year until it was almost composed of patches, and last year it had nearly been carried away by the spring freshet, and it was doubtful if it would stand much longer. It could be rebuilt for from $800 to $1,000, and as the bridge was as much used by the people of the country as the townspeople, he asked a liberal appropriation towards its reconstruction.

The Council resumed at 2 p. m. pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. SEXSMITH presented the first report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, which recommended that on the account of Mr. Cornelius Carroll for damage to his mare on the county road back of Selby, amounting to $130, the sum of $108 be granted, and in case that sum is refused, that a defence be entered in court. After a lengthy discussion the report was adopted.

Messrs. Henwood, Gibbard and Wallace, members of the Street Committee of Napanee Council appeared as a deputation. Mr. Henwood, chairman, stated that the swing bridge was in such a bad condition that it was necessary to have a new structure. The bridge had been repaired from year to year until it was almost composed of patches, and last year it had nearly been carried away by the spring freshet, and it was doubtful if it would stand much longer. It could be rebuilt for from $800 to $1,000, and as the bridge was as much used by the people of the country as the town-people, he asked a liberal appropriation towards its reconstruction.

Messrs. Gibbard and Wallace also made some remarks which were in substance the same as what Mr. Henwood had said.

Chief Allen stated that the bridge had cost the town from $100 to $300 each year to keep it in repair, and it was necessary to have a new bridge. In answer to an enquiry as to the original cost of the bridge he said that it was built by subscription, and as much of the timber was given by private persons he could not tell how much it cost. The contractor received $1,400 for his work.

Mr. PARKES moved, seconded by Mr. WILSON, that the matter be referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.—Carried.

The Reeve of Adolphustown brought in the report of the special road money expended in that township for the year, amounting to $139.43.—Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

The WARDEN stated that he had a petition from Napanee Town Council with reference to a home for the poor, which was referred at the December session to a committee composed of Messrs. Lloyd, Deller, Herring and T. G. Carscallen, but the committee had had no time to attend to it. He placed it before the Council to do with it as they wished.—Filed.

Moved by Mr. BALL, seconded by Mr. DIAMOND, that the Treasurer be requested to report the amount of money on hand, and the uncollected taxes and any other arrears.—Carried.

Mr. WILSON presented the annual report of the Treasurer as follows:—

Mr. POLLEY brought in the report of the special committee on the memorial to the Government asking to have railway freight charges adjusted.—Adopted.

The WARDEN being called away on business the chair was at his request taken by Capt. Polley.

Moved in amendment by Mr. MALLORY, seconded by Mr. PARKS, that this matter be laid over until the March session.—Lost.

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Mr. WILSON, seconded by Mr. SHARP, that the matter be referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges to report at the March session.—Carried.

Council adjourned till 10 a.m. to-morrow morning.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

A communication was read from Mr. Sheriff Pruyn, stating that his private office had never been furnished. When he wanted to take a person to his private office he had to take them into a room without even a chair. After having served eighteen years he thought he was not asking too much of the council to furnish it.—Referred to the Committee on County Property.

Moved by Mr. Perry, seconded by Mr. Parks, that there be no session of this Council until the month of June.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Reid, seconded by Mr. Sexsmith that whereas, there is a difference of opinion as to the advisability of doing away with the March session, and as debentures are due, amounting to $40,000, which will have to be provided for, that the matter be referred to the Warden and the Finance Committee to call a March session, if they think it advisable.

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Mr. Polly seconded by Mr. Wilson, that the March session be held, in consequence of the large amount of debentures due and to be provided for.

Mr. Wilson said that the money would have to be provided and some of the debentures would have to be sold by June, and in order to deal more fully with such an important question he thought it would not be proper to do away with the session.

Mr. REID was satisfied to leave the matter in the hands of the Warden and the Finance Committee. He thought they were capable of judging what action was best.

Mr. POLLY spoke in favor of holding the March session on account of the importance of the matter of debentures and he thought ERK announced Mr. Lloyd duly elected he was escorted to the chair by John and the oath of office was administered by His Honor Judge Wilkison.

Wagar and Brown entered and took seats.

ARDEN then addressed the Council thanks for the honor conferred upon him which he considered was enhanced by the passing of the McCarthy Act which made him a member of the Board of Commissioners. He pointed out that it would be necessary to provide for debentures which are nearly due—$20,000 in August and $20,000 in February next. It would be necessary to float debentures to retire the old. In consequence he suggested that the Council make appropriations at this session and obviating the necessity of a March session. (Applauded.)

is a difference of opinion as to the advisability of doing away with the March session, and as debentures are due, amounting to $40,000, which will have to be provided for,
that the matter be referred to the Warden
and the Finance Committee to call a March session, if they think it advisable.

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Mr. Polly seconded by Mr. Wilson, that the March session be held, in consequence of the large amount of debentures due and to be provided for.

Mr. Wilson said that the money would have to be provided and some of the debentures would have to be sold by June; and in order to deal more fully with such an important question he thought it would not be proper to do away with the session.

Mr. REID was satisfied to leave the matter in the hands of the Warden and the Finance Committee. He thought they were capable of judging what action was best.

Mr. POLLY spoke in favor of holding the March session on account of the importance of the matter of debentures and he thought the council might lose more by not holding the session than the cost of holding it would amount to.

Mr. PARKS thought that nothing would be lost by doing away with the March session.
The committee would not have time before the March session to properly prepare the report and much more might be lost by doing it in a hurry, and they should be given till June.

Mr. SULLIVAN said there was no need of the March session. There were intelligent men on the Finance Committee and they would have time to inquire into the matter before the June session. The expense of the session was utter waste. He did not want the county to lose any money by the debentures, but he thought the session could be dispensed with without loss.

Mr. WILSON said the cost would not amount to much. It was not necessary for the council meeting to last four days. They could shorten it if there was no business. He thought the councillors did not come to Napanee to have a good time. They all did it in the public interest. It was for no personal ends that he wished to have the Council meet.

Several other members spoke, and the majority were in favor of having a March session, owing to the important business to be transacted.

The amendment to the amendment was then put and declared carried, and on the yeas and nays being called for it was again carried, on the following division:—Yeas—Messrs. Ball, Bosleay, Carscallen, J. C., Carscallen, T. G., Davis, Diamond, Files, Johnston, Lane, Lloyd, Mallory, Polly, Wilson. Nays—Messrs. Brown, Perry, Parks, Reid, Sexsmith, Sharp, Wagar.

Moved by Mr. Ball, seconded by Mr.
Diamond, that this council do not recognize any motion not made in writing, except motions for the adoption of reports and adjournment.

Mr. WILSON read over the printed rules of the Council which covered the motion made by Mr. Ball. Mr. Ball then withdrew his motion.

A number of accounts was presented as follows:—Robert Light, repairs to Court House and gaol, $5.90; Hinch Bros., sundries, $8.38; Mr. Roberts, cutting wood and other work, $7.00; T. H. Waller, re-had no time to attend to it. He placed it before the Council to do with it as they wished.—Filed.

Moved by Mr. BALL, seconded by Mr.
DIAMOND, that the Treasurer be requested to report the amount of money on hand, and the uncollected taxes and any other arrears.
—Carried.

Mr. WILSON presented the annual report

Chinese Babies.

It was at the residence of the Chinese minister, and the representative of the Washington Republican had called to enquire about the health of the minister's baby daughter. Tsh Shan Pung, first secretary of Legation, had said that the very young lady was in excellent health and spirits and was growing rapidly. Then the reporter said he had a very delicate question to ask, and begged the secretary not to be offended, but if the question was a violation of Oriental etiquette to at once inform him and they would talk about the weather or some other harmless subject.

"It is customary, you know," continued the reporter, "in this country to publish quite minute details of the private life of high-born babies and—"

"I understand," said the secretary, over whose face there had crept a smile of appreciation and amusement, "you want to know about the baby's feet. Some one has said that they were already bound. I assure you that it is no such thing. Her feet are just like any American baby's."

"But is it not true that the growth of the feet of the noble Chinese girls is stopped early in life?"

"Certainly it is true, just as it is true that the waists of all high-born American ladies are compressed," and the secretary illustrated by compressing his own rather slender waist with his two hands. "To make the ladies' feet small," he continued, "is a Chinese fashion. It is a demand of fashion or custom in both cases, and nothing more, I assure you."

"At what age are the feet bound?"

"When the little girl is six or seven years old. The process is so gradual that I think there is no pain about it whatever; no more than when an American girl binds her waist."

"Is there nothing peculiar, then, about the very early life of a Chinese maiden?"

"Nothing in the world. She is just like an American baby. About two months ago the members of the Chinese Embassy celebrated the day when she was a month old by a dinner at Wormley's. The next celebration in her honor will be when she is old enough to go to school. Then there will be another dinner. These will be no more festivities for her until she is married."

"When will she be old enough to go to school?"

"When she is seven or eight years old."

"I suppose you mean by 'going to school' that an instructress will be brought into the family?"

"Not always. Sometimes a rich little Chinese girl will have a governess in the house, but often several wealthy families employ a tutoress together and send their children to her for instruction. It is a private school."

Just then there came down from the

INTERESTING ITEMS.

One of the German newspapers recently called attention to the scarcity of apothecary shops in Berlin, and within a fortnight afterward thirteen new shops were licensed and for six others licenses were under consideration by the police authorities.

The eastern quarter of London is undergoing rapid changes, the like of which are declared to have been previously unknown since the great fire. Recently no fewer than 130 houses, some of them the oldest in London, have been pulled down in order to make space for a new thoroughfare leading to Tower hill.

A hygienic museum is to be founded in Berlin. A large collection from the exhibit of the great "hygienic exhibition" which closed Dec. 15, has already been made as a nucleus, and the objects are to be stored for the winter in the exposition building until permanent quarters can be secured. The plans are in capable hands, and great things are expected to result.

In France there are now 103 lunatic asylums, 61 of which are public, and 42 private. Nine of the total are exclusively for men, and 14 for women, the rest being for both sexes. During the last fifteen years a considerable increase in lunacy has occurred in France. There were 34,000 lunatics in 1868, and there are now 60,000.

British journals bring interesting details of the industrial census of India in 1881. The total population of the country is 253,891,821, and of this enormous number only 85,544 persons are British-born subjects, and 56,646 are soldiers, and 12,088 females. Practically, less than 17,000 male civilians, wielding an army of 56,000 men, control the vast empire. The whole number of European returned is only 146,612. The occupations of 102,620,000 persons are defined, and of these 71,199,000 are engaged in agriculture or the care of animals. In industrial occupations 21,041,000 persons are engaged—12,859,000 males and 8,182,000 females. The workers in cotton and flax number 3,485,465; in clothing, 2,815,280; in vegetable food, 3,165,429; in stone, clay and earthenware, 1,800,974; in houses and buildings, 836,453; in gums and resins, 762,526; in bamboo, cane, rush, straw and leaves, 680,732; in gold, silver, and precious stones, 472,956, and in iron and steel only 477,361. Engaged in the work of government—national, local, and municipal—are 1,844,000 persons, of whom, 315,000 are classed as belonging to the army. The professional classes embrace 1,451,000 persons.

the Chinese minister's wife did not go out or receive callers.

"That," said the secretary, "is only because she does not speak English, and it would be highly improper according to our etiquette, for a gentlemen to translate for her. Neither does the minister speak English, and there is no one who could translate for his wife."

"How is it that the minister cannot speak English when you speak it so well?"

"I acquired the language in Hong Kong,
but the minister is now an old man, about sixty-one years old: nevertheless, he is studying the language."

Returning to the more interesting subject of the ladies, the reporter suggested that the wife of the Chinese minister at Paris was quite a favorite in society and went out very often.

"That is," said the secretary, "because she has a very charming young lady daughter, highly educated, and speaking European languages well. She can translate for her mother."

"Is the minister's wife the only Chinese lady here?"

"Yes. The other members of the embassy, if they are married, must leave their wives at home. The minister's wife has two Chinese maids with her, but there is really no room for any more ladies
in the house," said the secretary, laughing

He then explained that the term of office of the memers of the embassy was three years, after which they had six months leave of absence in which to go to China and visit their families before returning, if they did return, which was optional with them. The present is the second Chinese Embassy, and there are but two members of it who were here with the first embassy. And, the secretary said, three years is quite long enough to be separated from one's family. The seclusion of the minister's wife has not been generally understood, but the secretary stated that the reason given above was the only one. She occasionally goes out riding, but makes no calls and has no society. The advent of the baby must have been a blessing to her secluded life.

According to the calculations of the registrar-general, the area of England and Wales at the time of taking the last census was equal to nearly one and a half acres for every human being, so that if the population had been equally distributed the distance between the two neighboring individuals would have been ninety yards. Saxony and Belgium are the only two other European countries where the population is as dense as this. Elbow room, however, is constantly diminishing. About the commencement of the present century, the proximity of individual to individual on an equal distribution would have been about 158 yards;
in 1821, 132 yards; in 1851, 103 yards;
in 1871, 26 yards.

Important to Ruptured Persons.

The Excelsior Rupture treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world-wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists, both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefits which are derived from the use of the treat- ment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture, or send 6 cents for one to the Ex- celsior Rupture Cure Mfg Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Flax-Seed.

The evidence produced to establish the superior claims of FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND as a remedy for Nervous exhaus- tion and all its symptoms is unquestionable. The large and increasing demand is almost entirely due to its own merits. We do not place it in competition with patent medi- cines or secret remedies, as we furnish the formula and can show that it consists of a superior combination of phosphorus, with the fat-producing properties of the Flax- Seed. During the past six months over FOUR THOUSAND BOTTLES have been dis- pensed in the city of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and county of St. Lawrence, where it is manufactured, and the universal verdict is that it is the best NERVE TONIC, BLOOD EN- RICHER, and PURIFIER ever produced. We solicit investigation as to the reputation of the remedy where ever it has been used.

Flax-Seed.

The evidence produced to establish the superior claims of FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND as a remedy for Nervous exhaustion and all its symptoms is unquestionable. The large and increasing demand is almost entirely due to its own merits. We do not place it in competition with patent medicines or secret remedies, as we furnish the formula and can show that it consists of a superior combination of phosphorus, with the fat-producing properties of the Flax-Seed. During the past six months over FOUR THOUSAND BOTTLES have been dispensed in the city of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and county of St. Lawrence, where it is manufactured, and the universal verdict is that it is the best NERVE TONIC, BLOOD ENRICHEN, and PURIFIER ever produced. We solicit investigation as to the reputation of the remedy where ever it has been used.

PULLMAN CITY.

No Policemen, No Saloons, No Aldermen,
No Debts—A Beautiful Town Built
by a Great Manufacturing Company.

Correspondence New York Sun.

When in 1880 the rapidly extending business of the Pullman Palace Car Company necessitated the erection of new works, Mr. George M. Pullman found an opportunity for carrying into effect a theory which he had long entertained. The first question to be decided was as to the location of the shops. A great deal of land was required, and to secure the necessary space in any portion of Chicago would have called for the expenditure of a very large sum of money. More than three thousand workmen were to be employed, and if the shops were located in the city these men, with their families, would be compelled to live in crowded and unhealthy tenements, in miserable streets, and they and their children would be subject to all the temptations and snares of a great city. Looking at the matter from the standpoint of a capitalist, and from that of the workman as well, Mr. Pullman felt that it would be better for all concerned if the new works could be established in the country. There was no town already built that commended itself to him. In all to which his attention was drawn there were cheap and shabby houses, numerous saloons and associations not of the best. To establish the enterprise in one of these would, perhaps answer the purposes of the company, but the moral and physical well-being of the working people would have to be lost sight of. Unwilling to give up his theory, Mr. Pullman determined to build a town to order. There is a provision in the charter of the Pullman Palace Car Company which prevents that corporation from owning as much land as was required for Mr. Pullman's purpose. To obviate this difficulty the Pullman Land Company was organized, Mr. Geo. Pullman being the president and owner of the majority of stock.

South of Chicago, for many miles, the country is very undesirable. Near the lake it resembles the pine barrens of the sea shore. Further inland it is marshy and low. The double tracks of the Eastern trunk lines form ridges through it, and between them the surface water accumulates, or trickles away to Lake Calumet. This is a small body of water which empties into Lake Michigan at South Chicago, and the shores of which are soft and swampy. The object of Mr. Pullman being to find cheap land, he was easily satisfied with that offered to him in this locality. Three thousand acres were purchased at a merely nominal price. The tract is situated along and near Lake bottom is forced by means of pumps through pipes to the farm owned by the company, more than three miles away, where it is used for purposes of fertilization. Many misgivings were expressed at first concerning the wisdom of this scheme of sanitation, but its success has been demonstrated; engineers from all parts of the world have investigated it carefully, and have invariably expressed themselves as satisfied of its efficacy. The gas works are situated on the shore of Lake Calumet, just east of the main buildings of the company.

On the 2nd of April, 1881, the Pullman shops were started, the great Corliss engine which figured so conspicuously at the Centennial Exposition furnishing the motive power. With the shops in operation turning out scores of railroad cars of every description daily, the theory of Mr. Pullman was to be put to the test. His theory needs to be understood before his town can be comprehended. The Sun's correspondent visited him at his Chicago office recently and made a few enquiries. Mr. Pullman is calm, dignified, and courteous, a little past middle life, but just in the prime of a wonderfully successful business career.

MR. PULLMAN'S OWN ACCOUNT OF THE ENTERPRISE.

"The building of Pullman," he said, "was undertaken simply as a matter of business. I have little of the sentimental in my nature. I abhor abstruse problems. I can see nothing in this enterprise which is not a matter of finance, pure and simple. I have always believed that there is a great deal of good in human nature; that men naturally prefer to be clean, to have pleasant homes, and to be respected by their fellowmen. We are all very largely creatures of our own surroundings and associations. If you take a boorish countryman with the mud of the farm on his boots, or a city rough, into your parlor, in the presence of your wife and children, he will sit up a little straighter and attempt to be a little more polite than is habitual with him. In a city like this the scarcity of room drives mechanics and other workmen to the most miserable tenements, where cleanliness is almost impossible, and where, the association being nearly all bad, they and their families find it almost impossible to lift themselves above the squalor with which they are surrounded. Then, too, the temptations of the city are not to be overlooked. Denied many social advantages, the workman is apt to drift for recreation into low saloons, where his earnings are spent, and soon his misery and that of his family are increased by his habits of dissipation. Such a man is not more profitable to his employer than he is to himself. Believing these things as I do, I could not but feel that a place like Pullman would be a good investment. Solely as such was it undertaken. I have not

The fire is owned and operated in the same way as the livery stable, the public library, and every other town. A stranger arriving puts up at a hotel managed by Pullman's employees, visit where all the attendants are man's service, drinks water at which Mr. Pullman's water supply, hires one of his out manager of Mr. Pullman's library, visits a school in which the Mr. Pullman's employees are other employees, gets a bill Mr. Pullman's bank, is unable purchase of any kind save from Mr. Pullman's, and guarded by a fire department, a part of which, from the chief Mr. Pullman's service. The object of Mr. Pullman being to find cheap land, he was easily satisfied with that offered to him in this locality. Three thousand acres were purchased at a merely nominal price. The tract is situated along and near Lake Calumet, and lies on both sides of the Illinois Central railway, about fourteen miles from this city. To build a city in such a place looked like a great undertaking. But it was exactly what Mr. Pullman desired. He wanted everything to be new, and of the best quality. The sewerage problem was the next to be solved. The land was, as has been said, low and level. No natural outlets could be contrived. A great well was, therefore, dug, and all the sewers of the town, which were quickly built in the most substantial manner in all the streets, were made to centre in this cesspool. Simultaneously with the sewers water and gas pipes were laid. The streets, which are broad and straight, were then laid out and macadamized.

LAYING OUT A CITY.

While this work was in progress under the superintendence of the sanitary engineer employed for the purpose by Mr. Pullman, the architect, Mr. Beaman, of New York, was busy with his plans. It is not often that an architect has an opportunity to draw plans for an entire city at once. Mr. Beaman, however, undertook the work with something of the enthusiasm of Mr. Pullman, and catching the latter's ideas, was able to transfer them to paper, and take the first steps towards their execution. When the material was at hand special trains with hundreds of workmen were run from Chicago in the morning, returning with them at night; and in a few months the coming city began to assume shape.

The great shops of the company were erected near the Illinois Central railroad tracks. These buildings are very substantial, and in some sense ornamental. They are of pressed brick and stone, with roofs of slate, cover fifteen acres, and accommodate more than 2,000 workmen. South of the works, and separated from them by a wide boulevard, along which stand the handsomest houses in the town, lies the city. It is regularly laid out, with wide

Such a man is not more profitable to his employer than he is to himself. Believing these things as I do, I could not but feel that a place like Pullman would be a good investment. Solely as such was it undertaken. I have not been disappointed in it in any respect. It is a beautiful place, and even on the hardest effect of the handsome surroundings has been beneficial. On a broad avenue lined with cosy houses, with flowers and lawns on every hand, and scrupulous neatness everywhere maintained, a man of the dullest mind would feel ashamed to appear in public in his shirt sleeves or barefooted. I have noticed it myself. Some of the families moving into the nice new cottages with their old dirty traps made me feel a little discouraged once, but it was not long before, in the windows of these same houses, pretty flowers were visible, and the appearance of the inmates gradually improved. Everything depends upon one's surroundings. The Pullman enterprise appears to many people to be a very complicated matter. It is not. If it had been I would not have undertaken it. It was necessary simply that the execution of the plans should be in the hands of one man. I do not pretend to say that some other man could not have succeeded as well as I, but I do maintain that some one man should have the sole directing voice in such an undertaking. I feel that if the building of Pullman had depended on a corporation or an association it would not have been built as it is. For instance, I am satisfied that in the matter of the theatre nobody would have agreed with me that the expense for that purpose was advisable. As it is, there have been no disagreements, for the reason that there is nobody to disagree with. The town is as clean financially as it is in every other respect. It has no debts nor no mortgages. It is all paid for, and has been from the first.

"Usually, when land schemes are set on foot there is a big boom for a while, and then a flattening out. Some people look at Pullman from cars, and say it is pretty, but it won't last. It will last. The works will make it permanent. If for any reason the works were to close permanently, the town, with its fine houses,

A CITY WITH NO CORPORATIVE MENT.

Although the city has a population of 7,000 it has no government which is exercised in commerce, entire township, county, and other words, there is no government. No arrest has ever within the Pullman tract. There are no policemen or constables; no court, no Aldermen, no publicaries of any description.

"How in the world do you people?" is a question often asked of Pullman.

"We govern them," he says, "the same way a man governs his store, or his workshop. It is enough, when you come to look at it."

So it seems. A man going to apply for a house to the superintendent who draws up a lease which is called by either party on ten years. The company will not disturb a good citizen, and he may keep as long as he pleases, provided he does not sell liquor. On the other hand, if dissatisfied and wishes to leave, he may do so at any time, and is not bound by a lease running a year or more. If liquor is sold in the town, it is against it, however, is an offence whereof Mr. Pullman is the prosecutor. To provide healthful amusement for the people, Mr. Pullman has handsome boat houses on the lake, and this beautiful boat is nightly covered with boats for pleasure-seekers. There are organizations among the workmen, including a debating society, a musical association, a brass band, a baseball team and others. It is the desire of Mr. Pullman to encourage all these things as far as possible. He feels the need of a paper in the town, and intends to establish one. It will be edited by his employees. He has no purpose in establishing this sole motive being to give the town news at little expense, and macadamized.

LAYING OUT A CITY.

While this work was in progress under the superintendence of the sanitary engineer employed for the purpose by Mr. Pullman, the architect, Mr. Beaman, of New York, was busy with his plans. South of the works, and separated from them by a wide boulevard, along which stand the handsomest houses in the town, lies the city. It is regularly laid out, with wide streets, and compact and solidly built houses, all of brick and stone, with handsome lawns, shade trees, and flower beds. These houses are 1,426 in number, and vary in rent according to their size, location, and conveniences. In front of the main building of the company's works, and in plain view from the Illinois Central railroad, is a beautiful park with a miniature lake, many handsome flower beds, rockeries, solid stone copings, shrubbery and fountain. South of the depot, which is a fine Gothic structure, is the Arcade, and just east is the hotel. The Arcade is a spacious and elegant building, which contains all the stores of the city, and the post office, library, theatre, bank and cafe. All the stores and offices face a wide tile-laid interior court, with galleries on the second floor reached by easy stairs. The building cost $300,000, and at night its interior resembles nothing so much as a bazaar or fair. The hotel is a massive building, elegantly furnished and well kept. The market house, arranged something after the style of the Arcade, affords ample facilities for the butchers of the town. The church is a beautiful Gothic structure of stone, with green stone trimmings and a lofty spire. The school house is commodious and sunny. The livery stable has accommodation for scores of horses, and is, besides, the headquarters of the fire department. Near the centre of the company's works is the huge water tower. Under this is the sewerage cesspool, and in the top is a tank supplied by contract with Lake Michigan water from the Hyde Park water works. From this tank water is distributed throughout the town. The sewage which accumulates in this pit at the

The works will make it permanent. If for any reason the works were to close permanently, the town, with its fine houses, sewerage, and other conveniences, would prosper as a suburb. I have done everything with a view to permanence, and have made no attempt to create a furore. Having decided to establish our works fourteen miles from the city, the building of houses to accommodate the 2,000 workmen and their families became necessary. We could not undertake to convey them back and forth, and, besides, the location of the shops in the country was for the purpose, in part, of removing our men from the city. We could not expect 2,000 men and their families to live out on the prairies and be contented unless they were provided with the conveniences of modern civilized life. It was here that my theory was put into force. I believe the men who have pleasant surroundings will be better men than those whose surroundings are bad, and that this being the case, the employer will derive a great benefit. I have therefore spent a great deal of money beautifying the town and in providing for the moral and physical development of the people, and it has paid me well. A man who can bring his mind down to understand the simplest business proposition can fathom the Pullman scheme very easily. It is simplicity itself. We are landlords and employers. That is all there is of it."

A CHURCH OFFERED FOR SALE.

It may well be asked if Mr. Pullman is not too modest, or if he does not do himself an injustice when he asserts that sentiment has had nothing to do with his great work. The city of Pullman, as it stands, represents an outlay of about $6,000,000. All the buildings in the place

So it seems. A man going applies for a house to the superintendent who draws up a lease which is called by either party on ten days. On the other hand, if he is dissatisfied and wishes to leave, he may do so at any time, and is not bound to give notice. If a lease with a lease running a year or more is sold in the town. It is against it, however, is an unbroken rule whereof Mr. Pullman is the author. He provides healthful amusement for the people, Mr. Pullman has handsome boat houses on the lake, and this beautiful boat house is nightly covered with boats for pleasure-seekers. There are organizations among the workmen, including a debating society, a literary association, a brass band, a band and others. It is the desire of Mr. Pullman to encourage all these organizations as far as possible. He feels the need of a paper in the town, and intends to establish one. It will be edited and managed by his employees. He has no other purpose in establishing this paper, his sole motive being to give the town news at little expense, and to provide certain amusement. He thinks since they have organized societies, that it will be very educational and instructive to them to have proceedings reported.

Any more sketch of this town is imperfect. There are so many things to write about that it is impossible to write them all. The idea uppermost in my mind after seeing and understanding the place is, perhaps, that the happiness there is in the enjoyment of advantages which only wealth can give, and that, although far from himself, he suffers few of the ills of poverty. There is no poverty anywhere, and the fullest freedom of thought with good morals is granted to all.

Sweet charity is the antidote to misery.

Canada is certainly rich in minerals as well as in many other classes of valuable minerals. The trade in phosphate of phosphates has grown fully each year for the past ten years, and as new beds are being discovered new companies are making excavations for old beds, the probability is that our export trade will increase in the years to come. The port of Montreal alone no less than 7,500 tons were exported during the year 1880 the quantity exported was 7,500 tons. The increase has been growing each year since. Phosphate is among the most valuable of fertilizers and their importance is recognized in Great Britain. Our Canadian farmers would give more attention to their use are owned by the company. Nobody else can obtain possession of them for the reason that they are not for sale. They are rented to anybody of good character for sume calculated to return six per cent. on the investment. So many houses were built at one time they were, of course, put up much cheaper than they could have been constructed one by one. The rents are therefore, much less than those asked for houses equally good in the city, or even in their neighboring towns. To supply so large a population with religious and educational facilities became the duty of the founder of the town, as well as to provide for stores and markets. A fine school house was built, and teachers were employed. A costly church was erected. The arcade and market place were built, and the church and stores offered for rent. Mr. Pullman knew that the church was a better one than any new society could afford to occupy. He built it expensively, however, for he believed that a congregation would be able to pay for it. The rent is $50 per month. It has not been taken yet, but there are several church organizations, and there is considerable rivalry among them as to which will obtain the prize. If other churches are needed they will be built by the company.

Feeling that the town would attract a good many visitors, Mr. Pullman built the hotel. It was owned and managed by the company, its landlord, so called, being merely an employee. The fire department is owned and operated in the same way, as also are the livery stable, the theatre, the public library, and every fixture of the town. A stranger arriving at Pullman puts up at a hotel managed by one of Mr. Pullman's employees, visits a theatre where all the attendants are in Mr. Pullman's service, drinks water and burns gas which Mr. Pullman's water and gas works supply, hires one of his outfits from the manager of Mr. Pullman's livery stable, visits a school in which the children of Mr. Pullman's employees are taught by other employees, gets a bill changed at Mr. Pullman's bank, is unable to make a purchase of any kind save from some tenant of Mr. Pullman's, and at night is guarded by a fire department, every member of which, from the chief down, is in Mr. Pullman's service. Everything is first-class in its way. The library has 10,000 volumes, and is the personal gift of Mr. Pullman. The theatre, which, like the library, is in the second story of the Arcade building, is one of the most elegantly arranged places of amusement in the world. Its prices are reasonable, and it is open to dramatic and literary entertainments of the best class only. During the first six months that the library was open, seventy-six per cent. of the books taken out were on historical, biographical, or scientific subjects.

EYE WATER.—Three level table-spoonsful of white copperas, three level table-spoonsful of salt, one and one half pints of water. Boil this for a few moments and put a drop in the eye night and morning. Be careful in the use of it, as it is poisonous. This is known to be an unfailing remedy for weak and inflamed eyes. It should be diluted if used with babies.

TO SWEETEN RANCID BUTTER.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman states that she has rendered butter that was too rancid, even for cooking, perfectly sweet by cutting it into pieces of about a pound each, wrapping the pieces in clean, white cloths, and burying them a foot or more deep in the ground, allowing them to lie a week or two, then washing and resalting. A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker advises the boiling of the butter, with the addition of a handful of salt and a teaspoonful of soda, to two or three pounds of butter, then pouring it into a crock to cool.

LUMINOUS PAINT.—Take oyster shells and clean them with warm water. Put them in the fire for half an hour, and take them out, cool them, pound them fine, and remove the worthless gray parts. Put the powder into a crucible, with alternate layers of sulphur. Close the lid and seal it up with sand made into a stiff paste with beer. After the crucible has been over the fire for an hour, and afterwards cooled, the contents will be found to be white. Sift the powder carefully, and mix it with gum water. This gives a paint which remains luminous for a long time after dark, if it is first exposed to daylight.

GILDING LEATHER.—We find in the Papierzeitung the following method described for gilding leather. It is first moistened with a sponge, then stretched and tacked to a board. When dry it receives a coat of thick isinglass solution, then one of white of egg that has been beaten and allowed to settle. Upon this is laid lightly with a brush sheets of silver foil, which are then pressed down with a wad of cotton wool. When this is dry it is painted over with yellow leather varnish, which gives it a beautiful golden appearance. A varnish for bronze boots and slippers is made by dissolving aniline red in shellac or other varnish.

REMOVING STAINS.—A mixture which is excellent for removing grease spots and stains from carpets and clothing is made of two ounces of ammonia, two ounces of white castile soap, one ounce of glycerine, one ounce of ether. Cut the soap fine, dissolve in one pint of water over the fire; add two quarts of water. This should be mixed with water in the proportion of a teacupful to one ordinary-sized pail of water. Mix thoroughly, and wash soiled garments in it. For removing spots, use

So it seems. A man going there to live applies for a house to the superintendent, who draws up a lease which may be cancelled by either party on ten days' notice. The company will not disturb him if he is a good citizen, and he may keep his house as long as he pleases, providing he does not sell liquor. On the other hand, if he is dissatisfied and wishes to leave he can do so at any time, and is not encumbered with a lease running a year or more. No liquor is sold in the town. The theatre, which, like the library, is in the second story of the Arcade building, is one of the most elegantly arranged places of amusement in the world. Its prices are reasonable, and it is open to dramatic and literary entertainments of the best class only. During the first six months that the library was open, seventy-six per cent. of the books taken out were on historical, biographical, or scientific subjects.

A CITY WITH NO CORPORATIVE GOVERNMENT.

Although the city has a population of 7,000 it has no government save that which is exercised in common over the entire township, county, and State. In other words, there is no corporate government. No arrest has ever been made within the Pullman tract. There are no policemen or constables; no Justice's court, no Aldermen, no public function- aries of any description.

President Year.

This is "President year" in the United States, and there will be an unusual flutter in political circles in consequence. Arrangements are now being made for the national convention of the respective parties, to nominate their candidates for President and Vice-President, and to lay down their party platforms for the campaign. Of course the "platforms" are usually framed with a special view of catching the popular favor, and sometimes not much attention is paid to them afterwards. It is now pretty well understood that the question of Protection will receive much greater attention during the coming contest than for some time past. The many issues coming out of the late civil war have now become dead issues and outside of trade matters and Polygamy there are few subjects of great importance before the nation. The Republican party has always favored protection, but it is now well known that its influence is much on the wane, and it will require good piloting to ensure its success this time. Of course the business depression will tell seriously against the success of the party in the next contest.

A great deal of attention is just now being given in the United States to the discussion of the respective claims of the prominent men supposed to be available as candidates for the Presidency. The policy of the parties now appears to be to bring out some "dark horse" in the end, as the only available compromise between the leading rivals, and it is therefore quite probable that, on either side, the men selected in the end will be the men about whom least is now being said. The only wonder is that, under such a system, as good a class of men have been elected as have occupied the President's chair for years past. Lincoln and Hayes and Garfield were certainly all good men for the position, and Arthur has turned out far better than was generally expected. Whether Arthur will again be the nominee of the Republican party is now very

He thinks, also, since they have organized so many societies, that it will be very entertaining and instructive to them to have their proceedings reported.

Any more sketch of this town must be imperfect. There are so many things to write about that it is impossible to cover them all. The idea uppermost in one's mind after seeing and understanding the place is, perhaps, that the humblest citizen there is in the enjoyment of many advantages which only wealth can supply, and that, although far from a capitalist himself, he suffers few of the inconveniences of poverty. There is no extortion anywhere, and the fullest freedom consistent with good morals is granted.

Sweet charity is the antidote for bitter misery.

Canada is certainly rich in phosphates, as well as in many other classes of valuable minerals. The trade in the exportation of phosphates has grown wonderfully each year for the past five years, and as new beds are being found and new companies are making extensive purchases for old beds, the prospects are that our export trade will very largely increase in the years to come. From the port of Montreal alone no less than 17,160 tons were exported during the last year. In 1880 the quantity exported was but 7,500 tons. The increase has been steadily growing each year since. Phosphates are among the most valuable of agricultural fertilizers and their importance is more recognized in Great Britain than here. Our Canadian farmers would do well to give more attention to their use.

times not much attention is paid to them afterwards. It is now pretty well understood that the question of Protection will receive much greater attention during the coming contest than for some time past. The many issues coming out of the late civil war have now become dead issues and outside of trade matters and Polygamy there are few subjects of great importance before the nation. Lincoln and Hayes and Garfield were certainly all good men for the position, and Arthur has turned out far better than was generally expected. Whether Arthur will again be the nominee of the Republican party is now very doubtful. The popular cry in regard to him from week to week is so fluctuating that it is evident he has not a very strong hold on the popular favor.

To look back to antiquity is one thing, to go back to it another. If we look back to it, it should be as those who are running a race, only to press forward the faster, and to leave the beaten still further behind.

The outlook for the farmers is not very good for the new year. How the harvests for the coming year may turn out Heaven alone knows. The farmers, as a whole, in this Province are feeling pretty poor just now. Their ordinary grain crops last year were much below the average and the prices being so unexpectedly small, the amount of money their crops bring is probably not more than one half as great as was expected. In a country like ours, so largely dependent on its agricultural resources for its actual wealth, such a falling off in a single year is one of the most serious business calamities that could have overtaken us. Another bad harvest just now, and another year of low prices for grain, would bring ruin to many hundreds of business men not themselves engaged in agriculture at all. In Canada, at least, nearly every man feels a direct interest in the success of the farmer.

white cloths, and burying them a

RIDING A HORSE MACKEREL.

An Exciting Ride on a Whale by the Second Mate of the "Weepin' Susan."

"See that man?" said the captain of a cod fisherman at the Fulton market
this morning, pointing to a round-shouldered,
long-limbed sailor who was busy scraping
down the mainmast with a piece of window-pane: "wall, he's rid what ain't a-goin' to be rid again. No, he didn't ride out no gale
o' wind, nor no sea sarpint, nor no Davy Jones' cow. What he buckled to was a reg'lar out an outer of a hoss mackerel. I seen him do it," added the skipper, hammering the nail with a belaying pin; "and he rid him well, too. Hi! Amos, drop down a minute, will ye?"

Amos slackened away the halyard that had suspended him in mid air and lowered away, and coming forward, wrenched
the reporter's arm with New England cordiality.

"I ain't much on pipin' my own horn,"
he said; "but as Captain Lish has made the affidavit I'm bound to stick to it. It come," he continued, seating himself on the rail, "somethin' like this: I was second mate of the mackerel-man Weepin' Susan. That wasn't her registered name, but she was so master damp when close hauled that we gev her the handle sort of off-hand, and it stuck to her like burrs on a curly dog. We generally lay on and by between Biddeford and M'uhig-gan, and in a stress of weather put into the first hole we could ketch. One even-in' it came on to blow, and the hull fleet got inside of Fort Popham and laid it out, a snortin' nor-easter. After she blowed out, it came on a dead calm, and the boys got on what they call a racket.
There was over 300 sail of mackerel-men packed into a little harbor, so you could almost jump aboard of 'em one from another, and on each was a crew of from 10 to 15 men, making probably 4,000 men in all. Wall, about noon, somebody sounds a fog horn, and in a minute more over 1,600 of them fog horns was a tootin' like they had gone crazy, and the other hands
what hadn't horns was a-lammin' on tin pans they'd yanked out of the galley, and everybody was a-yellin'. I tell ye it made a noise that made the fish shed their scales all through the bay. I'll swan ye you could hear the howlin' and roarin' five miles.

"Wall the hull gang was agoin' it when our skipper noticed a big school of what we took to be mackerel right across the bay in shore. You kin bet we dropped them horns and jumped for the boats, and in a minute was under way. A half dozen of the others see what was up and pu after us, but we got there first, hev over the net and was round the school in short commons. In haulin' in the net we worked into shoal water, and I was standin' for'ard and holdin' the seine,
when there came a jerk and a splash, and a big fish riz right in front of me, and the first thing I knew I was on top of a hoss

SELECT VARIETIES.

Prudery is the caricature of modesty.

Good breeding consists in having no particular mark of any profession but a general elegance of manners.

Be courageous and noble-minded; our own hearts, and not other men's opinions
of us, forms our true honor.

Often the world discovers a man's moral worth only when its injustice has nearly destroyed him.

The feeble tremble before opinion, the foolish defy it, the wise judge it, the skillful direct it.

We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, while others judge us
by what we have already done.

If you would be pungent, be brief; for it is with words as with sunbeams—the more they are condensed the deeper they burn.

True glory takes root, and then spreads; all false pretences, like flowers,
fall to the ground; nor can any counterfeit last long.

A man who is able to employ himself innocently is never miserable. It is the idle who are wretched. If I wanted to inflict the greatest punishment on a fellow creature, I would shut him alone in a dark room without employment.

The talent of turning man into ridicule,
and exposing to laughter those one con-verses with, is the qualification of little minds and ungenerous tempers. A young man with this cast of mind cuts himself
off from all manner of improvement.

Never did any soul do good but it came readier to do the same again, with more enjoyment. Never was love, or gratitude, or bounty practised, but with increasing joy, which made the practiser
still more in love with the fair act.

No one of my fellows can do that special work for me which I have come into the world to do; he may do a higher work, but he cannot do my work. I cannot hand my work over to him, any more than I can hand over my responsibility or my gifts.

Suffer not your thoughts to dwell on the injury you have received or the provoking words that have been spoken to you. Not only learn the art of neglecting them at the time you receive them,
but let them grow less and less every moment, until they die out of your mind.

The family is a miniature commonwealth upon whose integrity the safety of the larger commonwealth depends. It is the seed plot of all morality. We express the noblest longings of the human heart when we speak of a time to come in which all mankind will be united as one family.

A Hint to Callers.

Now that a good many evenings are being spent out the question of just what constitutes a fair "evening" is more frequently discussed by both callers and hosts than is often imagined. One of the leading magazines has devoted an able article to the subject, but it is not worth the reproducing. We all know that, on both sides, altogether depends on the class of company. Mr. Jones, in his younger days, spent some evenings, very pleasant all round, where it seemed very short up to the small, wee hours past midnight. He visited other places where ten minutes was quite too long an evening for the pleasure of either party. Mr. Jones is a representative man of the whole of us in this particular. One writer thinks half an hour is about the safe thing for an evening call, ordinarily. One thing we know, and that is just what attention is directed to just now: A great many acceptable callers are much too thoughtless about the hour of leaving. In most well-regulated families the preparations for night retiring begin pretty early—say between nine and ten o'clock—and to prevent such regularity is something to be avoided. Of course, nearly all hosts

Mark Twain has hit upon a feasible way to protect his works in England. More just than the United States, England extends copyright to foreigners, and with the sole proviso that the work shall be first published in her country. Mark Twain, therefore, publishes his books in London one day before they are issued at home, and so protects himself in both markets.

That able and conspicuous member of the Gladstone Cabinet, Mr. Chamberlain, caused much laughter and many cheers by closing a public address on the present issue "between the peers and the people between the privileges of the few and the rights of many," as follows:—"I am inclined to hope, in the words of that beautiful Church litany which is read every Sunday, that all the nobility 'may be endured with grace, wisdom, and understanding.'"

At the siege of Sebastopol a formidable mine had been dug and loaded under the Malakoff tower. The wires were all cut, but the powder magazine could not be found. Some of the French soldiers were setting fire to the empty gabion which had been thrust into the windows of the tower in order to barricade it. One of the gabions appeared to be moving. A French officer called out that if any one was there who could speak French he might come without fear. The gabion was pushed through the window and a very young Russian officer crept out. He was assured that he and any others surrendering as prisoners of war would be well treated. After saying a few words in Russian at the window he was joined by four officers and two hundred common soldiers. They requested through him to be taken away at once. The unhealthfulness of many parts of Africa is the great obstacle in the way of opening it to civilization. Nine out of twenty French missionaries have died in two years, and the ranks of the International society's pioneers have been sadly depleted. The news has just come that James Stewart, C. E., who was building the road between Lakes Nyassa and Tanganyika, is dead. Explorers agree that the insalubrity of the country is largely due to the fact that the excessive luxuriance of vegetation along the river banks raises them above their proper level, cutting off the drainage from the plains. Dr. Schweinfurth and the Portuguese explorers, Capella and Ivenus, are convinced that a great change in the climate can be made by scientific drainage, and that, in fact, the country drained by some large rivers can be made healthful and habitable by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars.

An old Russian major who understood French ran forward, took the commandant by the hand, drew him to a heap of earth and pointed downward. The earth was quickly shovelled away, and barrels containing eighty-eight thousand pounds of gunpowder were discovered. A strong French guard was set over them. The young Russian officer was told to go with the other prisoners. He gave a military salute and kissed the old Russian major's hand.

"Do not blame him for showing you the powder," he said in French to the commandant, with trembling voice and tears in his eyes. "He is my father."

NAPANEE, FRIDAY, JAN. 25, 1884.

—The Ontario Legislature opened on Wednesday and re-elected Col. Clark, Speaker. The Speech from the Throne was delivered yesterday. A summary of the proceedings will appear in our next issue.

—Who says the Liberal cause is not advancing? Nine elections have taken place in Ontario during the past quarter, and how many do you think the Tories won? One! The Liberals carried the other eight. 8 to 1 are heavy odds.

—The County Council met on Tuesday and proceeded to elect a Warden. The ballot resulted in favor of Mr. B. C. Lloyd, Reeve of Camden. Mr. Lloyd may not be brilliant, but we believe his regime will be characterized by impartiality and square dealing—at least we have reason to hope so. Of his course in the Council during the past two years there has been no cause for complaint, and he being one of the eldest, one of the most painstaking and industrious members of the Council, had a claim on the office. Of course there were others of the Council whose claims were equally as good, but it is satisfactory to know that the honor fell to one of the deserving members, though no doubt the wire-pulling of the "Boss" and the "Shadow" had much to do in making the selection. We trust, however, that these worthies will not find in Mr. Lloyd the willing tool they would like him to be.

—It would seem that Mr. Wilson has laid himself out this year to run the whole coun-election. Under the plea of no politics, a clique obtained a majority in the Council, and no sooner did they get there than they threw off their sheep's clothing, and went politics straight. To what greater length they may carry out their designs, time alone will reveal.

—Ex-Coun. Lowry should feel flattered Mr. Roe branded him as a traitor and the judges accepted his word for it.

—When the next election comes round some body will work up a disagreement with Mr. Roe, and then Roe will get him to buy cats for him at $2 apiece. The dodge worked so well this time it is sure to be tried again. It is a new "wrinkle" in electoral corruption worthy of a patent.

—The Dominion Parliament was opened Thursday of last week by Governor Lansdowne, with the usual flourish of trumpets. The speech presented a very meagre bill of fare for the session. It opened with the usual congratulatory clause on the home government's admirable appointment to the office of Governor-General, and the next paragraph was devoted to a sort of admission of business depression. "I rejoice to learn," His Excellency was made to say in slipshod English and doubtful grammar, "that although the last harvest has been less productive than its predecessors, and although there are indications that the rapid expansion of your commerce has to some extent been followed by over trading, the general condition of the Dominion is such as to justify me in congratulating me upon its prosperity." The people generally will fail to see where the congratulations come in. The farmer with a short crop and poor prices; the mechanic and laborer, in competition with whom the Government have brought thousands of immigrants whose passages were paid out of the public chest; and the mercantile classes who have seen the business failures roll up from 755 in 1882, aggregating $8,139,000, to 1,464 in 1883, aggregating $22,155,000—hardly feel in the humor for indulging in a great amount of adulation over a fiscal policy which has largely contributed to bringing about such a state of affairs. A number of paragraphs follow referring to the Fisheries Exhibition, Consolidation of the Statutes, the British Columbia Settlement, Indian affairs—all of minor importance and merely put in to spin the document out to a respectable length. Then follows a confession of the failure of the 3 per cent guarantee on C. P. R. stock, and an intimation that further concessions to the Co. are to be granted. The only government measure of any importance promised is the franchise bill. The entire speech was a series of apologies for unfulfilled promises.

—The debate on the address opened on Friday. Hon. Edward Blake made a masterly speech. He took the floor the very picture of physical health and intellectual vigor. About him was the air of a man conscious of a good cause and the ability to

The Court of Appeal on Saturday decision in the case of the Lennox election. His Lordship the Chief delivering judgment said as to the Lowry it was immaterial whether a member of the municipal council avowed Conservative constituted a member of a nominating committee. It was certainly not him to dissent from being an agent, evidence showed that he did so phatically when asked by the respondent, and when asked by Mr. Secretary of the Conservative. It was said that he afterwards constituted him an agent, even if good faith spoken to electors on the respondent, especially after passed. It was not proved that he had, after his repudiation of accepted him as his agent. Lowry one act which Lordship thought it clear that the liquor by John Storms to several the blacksmith shop of Lockwood within either section 152 or 153 opinion the appeal should be dismissed.

The Court also concurred in the dissent.

AN INTERESTING LETTER
WASHINGTON TERRITORY

Dr. Kennedy Gets Enthusiastic
New Home.

The subjoined letter from Dr. Kennedy, formerly of Bath, to J. H. Esq., of this town, has been handed for publication. It gives valuable information as to the climate, products of Washington Territory. We are glad to learn that the Doctor is meeting with success in his new home.

SEATTLE, W. T., Jan

In reference to the climate of the Northwest I cannot say too much in its praise. The thermometer stands at 60° at this time, betokens the approach of spring. You will see by the budding twigs and the inclosed plants of vegetation inclosed. To pass a flower garden I noticed about to expand on one of the buds, violets and other tardy plants in the lawns the grass is as verdant as in the month of May. I have seen on the dinner table and radishes recently picked from the garden protected from hoar frosts by a netting.

proceeded to elect a Warden. The ballot resulted in favor of Mr. B. C. Lloyd, Reeve of Camden. Mr. Lloyd may not be brilliant, but we believe his regime will be characterized by impartiality and square dealing—at least we have reason to hope so. Of his course in the Council during the past two years there has been no cause for complaint, and he being one of the oldest, one of the most painstaking and industrious members of the Council, had a claim on the office. Of course there were others of the Council whose claims were equally as good, but it is satisfactory to know that the honor fell to one of the deserving members, though no doubt the wire-pulling of the "Boss" and the "Shadow" had much to do in making the selection. We trust, however, that these worthies will not find in Mr. Lloyd the willing tool they would like him to be.

—It would seem that Mr. Wilson has laid himself out this year to run the whole council—at least those members who are of his political stripe. He was not satisfied with having written out for each a list of the members he would like to have on the committee to strike the standing committees, but he had to roam about from desk to desk seeing that his followers acted up to their instructions. These gentlemen should have sufficient self-respect and independence to tell Mr. Wilson to mind his own business. He is not such a master of orthography that he can afford to give away any of his knowledge of even the rudiments. The "shadow" is evidently trying to wear the "Boss's" boots. Probably he may yet slip in the act.

—Six out of the seven members elected to strike the standing committees were Conservatives. Each of the faithful had his ticket ready, and as the names fell in musical tones from the Clerk they sounded like a well rehearsed ballad. It was: "Reid, Carscallen, Wilson, &c." And the arrangement was not changed in any case even to give the thing variety. The Reformers, of course, voted at random for the members they individually thought should be on the committee, irrespective of politics. The result was that not one Reformer was on the select committee and not a chairmanship of a standing committee was awarded outside the ranks of the faithful. A more disgraceful exhibition of party wire-pulling was, we venture to say, never witnessed in any council in the province. Even so old and useful a member as Mr. Sharp, Reeve of Ernestown, was passed by and the chairmanships given to men much inferior in ability and of less experience. It was a plot to "freeze out" Reformers, concocted by the County Clerk and carried into effect by his henchman, the Reeve of Napanee, the man who paraded the streets a few weeks ago looking for votes on the plea that he would not countenance the introduction of politics into municipal matters. It worked well this time but it remains to be seen whether others cannot play the same game in the future. These worthies may find their little game a sort of boomerang which will recoil on their own heads.

—The Town Council is also being run this for indulging in a great amount of adulation over a fiscal policy which has largely contributed to bringing about such a state of affairs. A number of paragraphs follow referring to the Fisheries Exhibition, Consolidation of the Statutes, the British Columbia Settlement, Indian affairs—all of minor importance and merely put in to spin the document out to a respectable length. The only government measure of any importance promised is the franchise bill. The entire speech was a series of apologies for unfulfilled promises.

—The debate on the address opened on Friday. Hon. Edward Blake made a masterly speech. He took the floor the very picture of physical health and intellectual vigor. About him was the air of a man conscious of a good cause and the ability to maintain it. His remarks throughout were characterized with a pleasing urbanity, while occasional flashes of humor and good natured sarcasm compelled even those he reflected on to join in the laugh against themselves. But, most noticeable, was the logical coherence and incisive reasoning with which he drew the lines of attack on the ministry and pushed home his arguments. Mr. Blake never appeared to better advantage. He dealt with every feature of the governmental policy with telling effect. Among the new members introduced were Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. D. W. Allison. M. P. Mr. Allison was introduced by Sir Richard and Mr. Wm. Paterson, M. P., amid Opposition applause. This was a realization of Sir Richard's prediction at the Crystal Palace meeting that Mr. Paterson and he would have the pleasure of presenting Mr. Allison to the Speaker.

THE APPEAL CASE DECIDED.

Decision was given in the Lennox appeal case on Saturday last. A summary of the Chief Justice's remarks thereon is given in another column, from which it will be seen Mr. Roe escaped unseating barely by, what another learned judge said on a similar occasion, "the skin of his teeth." The Chief Justice stated that a clear case of bribery was made out in the charge against Lowry, and had the evidence established Lowry's agency the respondent would have been unseated. This the learned judges held the evidence did not do. They agreed with Justice Galt in placing great weight on the fact that Lowry and Roe had had a disagreement about a municipal election and that there was no evidence of a reconciliation. They, therefore, accepted the view that Lowry committed the act of bribery to get even with Roe. This was certainly a weak point in the evidence, but had the judges at the trial allowed the petitioner to place Mr. Lowry in the box, we venture to say the reconciliation and authorization of agency would have been made clear. Nobody here believes that Lowry was acting the part of a traitor. On the contrary, the Conservatives nedy, formerly of Bath, to J. Esq., of this town, has been in for publication. It gives valuation as to the climate, produce of Washington Territory. We are to learn that the Doctor is meeting in his new home.

SEATTLE, W. T., J

In reference to the climate of I cannot say too much in its proper perspective. The thermometer stands at 60° this morning. The approach of you will see by the budding twigs of vegetation inclosed. I passed a flower garden I noticed about to expand on one of the violets and other tardy plants. The lawns the grass is as verdant as at home in the month of May. I have seen on the dinner table and radishes recently picked from the garden protected from hoar frost.

This city is beautifully situated on the shores of Elliott's Bay, an inner Sound, affording good shelter to the many ships which come here for lumber, fish and other exports, a favorable location for the growth of a prosperous city.

There are extensive coal fields, 30 miles inland, which, with Seattle, over which is carried by rail daily, a fact which assures a large increase of trade with the coast and the southern ports denoting a commodity. Owing to the fact that the port will eventually be the coal port of the Northern Pacific R.R., the coal trade has increased from 4,000 in 1883, and real estate is "booming" notwithstanding Villard's downfall. A way has been projected to the mining country of Walla Walla, constructed will give a great impetus to the growth of Seattle, since all the Eastern Oregon and Washington will be shipped from this port which speaks volumes for this port. It is out of debt, notwithstanding an outlay for city improvements, having been expended upon street widening during 1883. In addition to a bonus of $150,000 was given to the River branch of the N. P. R., for public schools and some $22,000 for other purposes. We have a large hospital, university, fine public schools, good divorce law and other indications of intelligence, wealth and progress.

The country, so far as its agricultural condition is concerned, is in a primitive state and resembles what one would expect to have been previous to the clearing of a dense forest extending down to the edge. If I were to tell you the immense fir trees that grow here call me an unmitigated exaggerator in my mild expression.

Game of all sorts, from an alligator to a fish, from the curious devil-fish to a tommy-cod, exist in the waters of this wonderful coast. Also of all kinds are to be found in the Cascade range of mountains within this state from north to south.

The population of this city is heterogeneous, being made up of ready, and as the names fell in musical tones from the Clerk they sounded like a well rehearsed ballad. It was: "Reid, Carscallen, Wilson, &c." And the arrangement was not changed in any case even to give the thing variety. The Reformers, of course, voted at random for the members they individually thought should be on the committee, irrespective of politics. The result was that not one Reformer was on the select committee and not a chairmanship of a standing committee was awarded outside the ranks of the faithful. A more disgraceful exhibition of party wire pulling was, we venture to say, never witnessed in any council in the province. Even so old and useful a member as Mr. Sharp, Reeve of Ernestown, was passed by and the chairmanships given to men much inferior in ability and of less experience. It was a plot to "freeze out" Reformers, concocted by the County Clerk and carried into effect by his henchman, the Reeve of Nananee, the man who paraded the streets a few weeks ago looking for votes on the plea that he would not countenance the introduction of politics into municipal matters. It worked well this time but it remains to be seen whether others cannot play the same game in the future. These worthies may find their little game a sort of boomerang which will recoil on their own heads.

The Town Council is also being run this year on strict party lines. The first act of the "solid seven" was to capture the nominating committee, and by this means appropriate to themselves the choice positions on the standing committees. A new member from West Ward was given precedence over Mr. Chas. Lane, one of the most valued representatives the town has ever had. The next act was to remove Mr. John Webster from the assessorship, an office he has held some twenty years. Had the change been made on the ground that Mr. Webster had held the office long enough, neither Mr. Webster nor his friends would complain in the least, but this was not the plea for his removal. A lot of trumped up charges of partizanship in the discharge of his duty was brought against him by the Reeve, and notwithstanding that all were clearly explained away, the "solid seven" went for his dismissal. If these men were at all consistent they would have dismissed the Clerk at the same time, for it was shown that he made several of the mistakes charged against Mr. Webster. That they did not do this is very good evidence that their action towards Mr. Webster was prompted solely by their political spleen. By this we do not wish to be understood as desiring the removal of the Clerk; on the contrary, we should be very sorry to see him dismissed for the clerical errors he committed. Both he and Mr. Webster have discharged their duties, we believe, honestly and impartially, and neither should have been arraigned for trifling mistakes which any man—even the immaculate Mr. Wilson—is liable to fall into. The "solid seven" were evidently not satisfied with having all the other offices of the town filled by Conservatives, but must needs capture this as well. It is easy to see now who were crying "wolf, wolf," before the

THE APPEAL CASE DECIDED.

This was certainly a weak point in the evidence, but had the judges at the trial allowed the petitioner to place Mr. Lowry in the box, we venture to say the reconciliation and authorization of agency would have been made clear. Nobody here believes that Lowry was acting the part of a traitor. On the contrary, the Conservatives admit he was acting in the best of faith, doing what he could in the way of cat-purchasing to procure Mr. Roe's election. Mr. Lowry would, we believe, have acknowledged this had he been placed under oath and in all probability would have told the source from which came the money he used. It is, therefore, to the exclusion of Mr. Lowry's evidence that it may be said Mr. Roe owes the retention of his seat.

In pushing the case to its utmost extent the Reformers have discharged a public duty. They recognized in Mr. Roe a man whose election was a reproach to the county and possessing the knowledge that his return was procured by corrupt means they resorted to the Courts. That they have been unsuccessful in the proceedings there is not their fault; they saw their duty and performed it like true men. All the ignominy attached to having a branded blasphemer and corruptionist as the representative of Lennox in the Local Legislature now rests upon the Conservatives who elected him. The Reformers have shown their disapproval, it now lies with the Conservatives to say whether they are satisfied with their choice. We do the respectable portion the credit of believing they are not.

Timely Aid.

A little daughter of the Captain of the steamer "Empress of India" was suddenly attacked with Croup while at a friend's house in Toronto. No medical aid being handy recourse was had to Hagyard's Yellow Oil; this popular household remedy afforded prompt relief and the little girl was as lively as ever in a few days.

What the Figures Reveal.

G. M. Everest of Forest says that in one year one family purchased over fifty bottles of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their own use and that of various friends. He has sold this invaluable throat and lung remedy over sixteen years, and its sales are steadily increasing.

constructed will give a great impetus to the growth of Seattle, since all the Eastern Oregon and Washington will be shipped from this port which speaks volumes for this is out of debt, notwithstanding outlay for city improvements, having been expended upon streets during 1883. In addition to bonus of $150,000 was given River branch of the N. P. R. public schools and some $22,000 for university, fine public school good divorce law and other indicative of intelligence, wealth and pride.

The country, so far as its agriculture is concerned, is in a poor condition and resembles what one would expect to have been previous to a dense forest extending down to the edge. If I were to tell you that the immense fir trees that grow here call me an unmitigated exaggerator, I would not be in the least mild expression.

Game of all sorts, from an eagle to a catfish, from the curlew to the devil-fish, from the tommy-cod, eels and waters of this wonderful country are also of all kinds are to be found in the Cascade range of mountains within this state from north to south.

The population of this city is heterogeneous, being made up of all parts of the world. Here are representatives of the Circassians, African and Indian types of the mingling together on the streets of Japanese, negroes, Siwash, from Alaska and Chili, Austrians, Britons, forming a conglomerate city which is in itself a study to the geologist and a spectacle to the traveler from the East.

The scenery here is something to behold. A clear day the snow-capped Coast range rising above the Sound is majestic beauty forming a contrast to the clear blue sky and the whole making a picture which would delight the eye of an artist.

But I have said enough—if you believe me come and see for yourself. Don't come without money to pay for the estate, for if you do you will be taking—in fact, you will be taking—the moneyed man of the town.

I remain, yours

LENNOX APPEAL CASE.

The Respondent Escapes being Unseated by the Skin of his Teeth.

The Court of Appeal on Saturday last gave decision in the case of the Lennox Local election. His Lordship the Chief Justice in delivering judgment said as to the agency of Lowry it was immaterial whether his being a member of the municipal council and an avowed Conservative constituted him ipso facto a member of a nominating or executive committee. It was certainly competent to him to dissent from being an agent, and the evidence showed that he did so very emphatically when asked by the candidate himself, and when asked by Mr. Elliott, the Secretary of the Conservative Association. It was said that he afterwards canvassed for the respondent, but that of itself would not constitute him an agent, even if he had in good faith spoken to electors on behalf of the respondent, especially after what had passed. It was not proved that the respondent had, after his repudiation of agency, accepted him as his agent. Lowry did commit one act which

WAS AN ACT OF BRIBERY,

and if he were an agent of the respondent the respondent would have been unseated. He referred to the pseudo-purchase for $2 of a cat from the colored man Taylor. One of the learned judges who tried the case, Judge Osler, entertained a suspicion that Lowry was playing false to the respondent. His Lordship thought it clear that the giving of liquor by John Storms to several persons at the blacksmith shop of Lockwood was not within either section 152 or 153. In his opinion the appeal should be dismissed with costs.

The Court also concurred in this judgment.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Dr. Kennedy Gets Enthusiastic Over His New Home.

The subjoined letter from Dr. A. Kennedy, formerly of Bath, to J. H. Madden, Esq., of this town, has been handed to us for publication. It gives valuable information as to the climate, products, etc., of Washington Territory. We are pleased to learn that the Doctor is meeting with success in his new home.

SEATTLE, W. T., Jan. 9, 1884.

In reference to the climate of this country I cannot say too much in its praise. To-day the thermometer stands at 60° and everything betokens the approach of spring, as you will see by the budding twigs and specimens of vegetation inclosed. To-day as I passed a flower garden I noticed a rosebud about to expand on one of the bushes, also violets and other tardy plants in bloom. On the lawns the grass is as verdant as it would be at home in the month of May. Already I have seen on the dinner tables onions and radishes recently picked from those gar-

Al- ready I have seen on the dinner tables onions and radishes recently picked from those gar- dens protected from hoar frosts by their situ- ation.

This city is beautifully situated upon the shores of Elliott's Bay, an inlet of Puget Sound, affording good shelter and anchorage to the many ships which come here for coal, lumber, fish and other exports, a most favor- able location for the growth of a large and prosperous city.

There are extensive coal fields at New- castle, 30 miles inland, which are connected with Seattle, over which is carried 1,000 tons of coal daily, a fact which assures a continu- ation and increase of trade with San Francis- co and the southern ports demanding that commodity. Owing to the fact that this port will eventually be the coast terminus of the Northern Pacific R.R. the population has increased from 4,000 in 1881 to 10,000 in 1883, and real estate is "booming" notwith- standing Villard's downfall. A line of rail- way has been projected to the wheat grow- ing country of Walla Walla, which when constructed will give a great impetus to the growth of Seattle, since all the wheat from Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory will be shipped from this port. One fact which speaks volumes for this place is that it is out of debt, notwithstanding the immense outlay for city improvements, $250,000 hav- ing been expended upon street grading alone during 1883. In addition to the above a bonus of $150,000 was given to the Cedar River branch of the N. P. R., $28,000 for public schools and some $22,000 for other purposes. We have a large hospital, state university, fine public schools, theatres, a good divorce law and other institutions in- dicative of intelligence, wealth and enter- prise.

The country, so far as its agricultural con- dition is concerned, is in a primitive state and resembles what one would imagine Can- ada to have been previous to settlement—a dense forest extending down to the waters' edge. The by-law was read in the usual form and passed, with the blanks filled in with the names of Mr. H. W. Wagar, Chief Engineer, and Mr. R. J. Wales, Assistant Engineer.

Coun. PERRY introduced a by-law for the appointment of a High School trustee. In committee of the whole the name of Mr. A. McNeill was inserted and the by-law passed.

Reeve WILSON introduced a by-law for the appointment of an assessor, and the Council went into committee thereon.

Coun. LANE moved, seconded by Coun. PERRY, that Mr. John Webster be re-ap- pointed.

Dep.-Reeve CARSCALLEN moved, seconded by Reeve WILSON, that Mr. Ira Kimmerly be appointed.

Considerable discussion ensued. Reeve Wilson arraigned Mr. Webster on the roll of 1882, charging him with leaving twenty Con- servatives off the roll. Mr. Webster on being heard showed that all the parties were on the roll but the property they occupied was not of sufficient value to entitle them to a vote. The Reeve then named specific cases and Mr. Webster in each gave a satis- factory explanation. In discussing the 1883 assessment Mr. Webster showed that the only mistake he had made was in leaving the name of Mr. Tugwell off the roll, and that was done in copying—the omission of the names of Wm. Appelby and Paul Peter- son was an oversight on the part of the Clerk. Mr. Datus Denison, who was left off the roll, is a Reformer, and therefore he could not be justly accused of allowing politics to interfere with his duty. After considerable cross- firing the vote was taken and the "solid seven" voted for Mr. Webster's dismissal. The amendment was carried.

Coun. PERRY moved, seconded by Coun. ROSE, that the salary be $125.—Carried.

The committee then rose and reported. On motion for third reading,

Coun. GIBBARD moved, seconded by Coun. PERRY, that the Council go back into com- mittee and substitute the name of Mr. Web- ster for that of Mr. Kimmerly.—Lost. The yeas and nays were called for and were as follows:—Yeas—Carscallen, Carson, Hen- wood, Joy, Lapum, Wilson, Wallace; nays—Gibbard, Lane, Perry, Rose and Stevens.

On motion $30 was voted the Poor and Sanitary Committee.

On motion of Coun. GIBBARD, seconded by Coun. CARSON, $34.03 was ordered to be paid Coun. Henwood to cover balance due him as chairman of the Poor and Sanitary Committee.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—Treas. vouchers, $232.67; T. A. Huffman, $16.75; J. M. Degroff, $2; S. R. Miller, returning officer, $4; J. Storms,

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY!

Jottings from Conversations with our Customers.

MISS M.—What a splendid store you have now. The alterations are a great improvement.

MR. D.—Well! You certainly can claim now to have the finest Shoe Store in the town. It looks exceedingly well when lighted up.

MISS MAC.—You must do an unusually large trade. I have repeatedly noticed that you are busy when others are doing nothing.

W. H., A COUNTRY MERCHANT.—Tell me how it is [that you] can retail these goods lower than I pay for them in Montreal.

FARMER.—I was attracted first to your store by your One Price System. I found when buying at other places that my neighbour had purchased the same goods at the same place for fifty cents a pair less than I did, because he beat down the price and I didn't.

C. C.—We have bought from you ever since you opened and have been well satisfied. You get all of our trade now and it amounts to considerable in a year, besides others that we have recommended to you.

C. FROM B.—We have come 20 miles to buy our boots from you and have saved enough on these few pairs to pay our fare several times over.

If you want any further evidence as to the right place to buy Boots and Shoes call at —Roads are full. Our teacher reports a slim attendance at school, owing to the unfavorable state of roads and weather.

—Miss Julia Sharp is visiting friends in Belleville.

—Mr. W. A. Hogle is our new assessor.

—Mr. S. K. Miller is now occupying a prominent office in the County Agricultural Society.

—While returning from Bath one night last week, Mr. James F. Aylesworth was unfortunate in being upset with his wife and child. The roads were badly drifted, but by going ahead he made a track in which his horse followed easily.

—Mr. B. E. Aylesworth has again been returned to the council. The thanks of this community are due to those noble Reformers of Odessa, who worked so faithfully for him and Mr. P. E. R. Miller.

—We are much pleased to have our old friend, Squire John Sharp, in the Reeve's chair this year. His great ability, long experience and sterling integrity fit him pre-eminently for the position of Warden.

WEEK'S NEWS CONDENSED.

THURSDAY, JAN. 17.

—The total amount received for the Humber accident fund is $7,877.26.

—Inquiry into alleged irregularities preferred against Mr. C. H. Corbett, county gaoler of Frontenac, by the county council, were tried at Kingston yesterday. The report of the commissioners will, it is reported, be a complete exoneration of Mr. Corbett.

—David McKay, a prominent local politician of Rochester, N. Y., who nearly fifty years ago published a newspaper in Kingston, Ont., died last night, aged 78. He leaves a widow and grown-up family.

—The annual meeting of the Midland Central Fair Association was held in Kingston on Wednesday last. It was shown by the Directors' report that the entries of all kinds numbered 2,508, against 2,754 in 1881. While there was a difference of 246 entries in favor of the latter year, the amount paid in prize money last year was in excess of that paid in 1881 by $43. In some of the departments there has been a lack of interest, others had shown up well. There is no doubt that had the season been favorable the difference in the classes referred to between the late exhibition and its predecessor of 1881 would not have existed. The revenue from all sources was $4,734.13, the disbursements $4,012.63, leaving a balance of $721.50.

—John Banwell, sewing machine agent of Picton, was crossing the bay on the 9th inst., near Minaker's Cove, when the horse broke through the ice and was drowned.

—The Globe train collided with a freight train at Mimico yesterday morning. John Clifton, engineer of the mail train, was badly injured.

—An express train drawn by two engines was derailed at Trenton last midnight. It had a dozen cars, five of them Pullmans. The latter were crowded with senators and members of parliament with their wives. The trucks were jerked out from under the second engine, and the coaches were scattered over the track in every shape. One Pullman was tipped over. No one was hurt, but the passengers were considerably shaken up. The accident was caused by the spreading of a switch, the bar being broken.

—John Davidson, aged 80, and his wife, aged 86, were found frozen to death near Newport, Tenn., to-day. They were too feeble to carry fuel, and went to bed to keep warm.

—Yesterday at Belleville Judge Lazier acquitted Thomas Parsons of the charge of assault with intent to commit highway robbery which was preferred against him.

—To-day's races at Trenton, Ont., were as follows:—

Open Trot—Little Walter, 1 1 2 1; Lookout, 3 2 1 2; J. N. Fuller, 2 3 3 3. Named Trot—Olive, 1 2 1 1; Lady Pert, 2 1 2 2; Fanning Horse, 3 3 3 3.

FRIDAY, JAN. 18.

—To-day a three-year-old child was discovered by the engineer of an approaching train firmly bound to the railway track near Columbia, S. C. The train was stopped within a yard of the destined victim.

—Edward Tappan, who is under arrest on suspicion of being implicated in the Townsend outrage, confessed this morning that his brother John and himself were concerned in the murder of Mrs. Maybee and her daughter.

—One of the boilers connected with the shoe manufactory and tannery of E. G. and E. Wallace at Rochester, N. H., blew up this afternoon, killing four men and injuring several others. The machinery was run by an engine and three boilers.

—At Kingston yesterday the male pupils of Cataraqui and Wellington streets schools had a snow-balling match after school hours, per arrangement, and had a warm contest. When snow balls had not the desired effect harder missiles were used, and the result was several got some severe cuts.

—At Trenton yesterday a young man named Wallace McMatthews, who was playing billiards in a hotel, threw a billiard ball at his opponent, with whom he had a dispute. The missile missed the man whom it was intended for and struck Wm. A. Hepburn, of Picton, behind the ear, knocking him senseless. McMatthews is missing.

I cannot understand why she gets refused, she is not particular to the age or looks. I noticed in the correspondence of last week, that the boys are waiting for a proposal from the girls. I guess they are going to wait a while. I would advise the girls to look up a professional man that does not reside within the corporation of Moscow.

A Special Invitation.

We especially invite a trial by all those sufferers from Kidney and Liver complaints who have failed to obtain relief from other remedies and from doctors. Nature's great remedy, Kidney-Wort, has effected cures in many obstinate cases. It acts at once on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleansing the system of all poisonous humors and restoring a healthy condition of those important organs. Do not be discouraged but try it.

An Important Enquiry.

Are you threatened with Consumption? If so, the cause may be in the blood. Impure blood and Scrofula are close companions, and Scrofula and Consumption are still closer related. Burdock Blood Bitters cure all forms of Scrofula by cleansing the blood and regulating the secretions.

If you are bilious or have indigestion, sick headache or dizziness, try Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, used instead of pills; they cure constipation. Price, 25c. per bottle. For sale by all druggists.

sudden meeting she remembered only what had been, and—Heaven bless her for it!—rejoiced as Nora Bruce might have rejoiced that I was given back from the dead. Then, in a moment, she remembered you and her new duties, and
—and we said good-bye!"

The pleasant full-toned voice faltered
a little over the last words ; but the blue eyes never wavered, nor shrank from Lord de Gretton's mocking and malignant glance. Arthur's one thought now was to shield the miserable girl who was so manifestly incapable of taking her own part. Some inner instinct warned him that Lord de Gretton's wife would have no easy path to tread ; and, since no earthly power could break the chain she had so rashly forged, he could only pity her with an intense unselfish pity, and inwardly swear that he would do nothing to make her hard path harder still.

Lord de Gretton was a clever man of the world, quite keen enough to know truth from falsehood and see through the finest histrionic display. He did not for an instant doubt that the man before him was speaking absolute truth, that Nora had believed him dead ; but his conviction was anything but soothing to his pride. Innocently or not, they had injured and aggrieved him, had wounded
his sensitive vanity, and compelled him,
the haughty and impassive Lord de Gretton, to play the ridiculous part of the gray-haired husband.

Jealous and deceived, he stared at Arthur Beaupre, his deeply-sunken eyes glittering angrily, his pale face actually flushing as he entertained the galling thought. Could Lady Olivia but have

She shivered slightly, and her lips twitch ; but she repeated the softened, though the tears stood

Lord de Gretton made an gesture, and the spell that held Beaupre was broken. Silently from terrace to terrace up the

among the tall trees that

Once only Nora turned her head and looked back—and that destined to haunt Arthur Beaupre with cruel pertinacity for many a week to come—will haunt him more or less of horror in the reance until he has done with earthly things for ever.

With a little shiver, for the began to grow chill, and he was from recent illness, Arthur put soft hat down over his brows,
his coat-collar, and, resolutely

back upon the scene of so much

CHAPTER VIII.

Lord de Gretton was the first to speak,
glancing at Arthur, his cold glittering eyes scanning the handsome face and upright soldier-figure in a superciliously appraising fashion that at any other moment would have made the young man's quick blood tingle. He crossed over to his wife's side, and said abruptly—

"Lady de Gretton, you will follow me."

He spoke with the abrupt harshness of a master addressing a slave who had fallen under his displeasure ; but no answering flush arose on the wife's pale face ; harshness and gentleness were one to her now.
The worst that could come to her had come ; she was alike past fear and hope.
She did not, even by a deeper-drawn breath or the quiver of an eyelid, give any sign that she had heard her lord's command or intended to obey it. She stood like one turned to stone, staring out over the wide waste of water, from which the last touch of sunlight had fled.

"Will you come?" Lord de Gretton muttered grimly ; and the light of the sunken eyes grew more and more dangerously cruel. He bent his head till his gray moustache swept the soft girlish face, and whispered with hissing emphasis in the small ear, "Are you mad, to defy me now?"

She shivered slightly, drew a pace or two away, and for the last time her eyes sought Arthur Beaupre's in wild and pitiful appeal.

The look pierced Lord de Gretton's
armour of cool self-possession and stung him to jealous fury. He knew that the

She shivered slightly, drew a pace or two away, and for the last time her eyes sought Arthur Beaupre's in wild and piteful appeal.

The look pierced Lord de Gretton's armour of cool self-possession and stung him to jealous fury. He knew that the girl he had wooed and won brought him no love as her marriage dowry. So much she had frankly told him from the first, and the confession had but made him the more determined that she should be his. He was so used to be wooed that the girl's unfeigned reluctance to accept his wooing gave her a novel and piquant attraction in his sight. He had heard the whole story of her first unhappy love from Cristine Singleton's truthful lips, and could afford generously to overlook the fact of a dead lover; but now was the lover really dead, or was Nora doubly false?

The suave polish of his manner covered a brutal nature, and in the rare moments of agitation he permitted himself the brutality rose to the surface, as now. He seized the slender wrist with cruel force, and swung the girl round with a savage suddenness that wrung a passionate word from Arthur Beaupre's lips and a wild cry from hers—

"Arthur, Arthur, save me—save me from him!"

Then, and not till then, Arthur Beaupre broke the silence so hardly maintained. He came forward, very white and stern-looking, and stood before the cruelly-united pair, his worn young beauty a sharp and terrible contrast to the jealous age confronting him. How fervently he prayed that the right words might come to him now, that he might close, and not widen the breach between these two, and help, not harm, the unhappy girl for whom his heart bled?

"Hush, Nora!" he said almost sternly, though he would have given his life to speak one word of comfort in her ear, to drive the dreadful frenzied look from her dark eyes. Then, turning to Lord de Gretton, he said eagerly, with all his honest heart in the words, "Lord de Gretton, permit me to explain all that seems strange to you now—"

But Lord de Gretton cut the sentence short; wheeling round upon his heel, he stared insolently into the frank blue eyes, and said slowly, with a sneer, while he twisted the ends of his long gray moustache into sharp points—

He did not for an instant doubt that the man before him was speaking absolute truth, that Nora had believed him dead; but his conviction was anything but soothing to his pride. Innocently or not, they had injured and aggrieved him, had wounded his sensitive vanity, and compelled him, the haughty and impassive Lord de Gretton, to play the ridiculous part of the gray-haired husband.

Jealous and deceived, he stared at Arthur Beaupre, his deeply-sunken eyes glittering angrily, his pale face actually flushing as he entertained the galling thought. Could Lady Olivia but have known it, all wrongs were fully avenged in that moment of bitterest mortification.

To recognize a wrong was, with Lord de Gretton, to resolve to revenge it. He ground his teeth together with savage energy, and vowed within himself that one of the offenders at least—the one who was helplessly and absolutely in his power—should receive exemplary punishment at his hands, so, returning Arthur's eager beseeching look with a coolly insolent stare, he said, in slow drawling tones that fell with maddening distinctness on the young man's ear—

"I suppose, for my own sake, as well as Lady de Gretton's, I had best accept this explanation."

"It is the true one; you cannot, dare not doubt it!" Arthur cried hotly, all the fiery pride he tried so hard for Nora's sake to curb to meekness flaming now from his bright blue eyes and ringing defiantly in the clear young voice.

"I have said I shall accept it," the other returned, with exaggerated emphasis and a cruel enjoyment of the pain he gave—"but upon certain conditions only."

He paused, looking keenly into the other's face, as awaiting a response; but Arthur merely bowed, not trusting himself to speak.

"First, you, or we, must leave this place at once; it is not large enough to hold the trio."

"I return to town to-night."

"Good. In the second place, you must promise that you will never seek Lady de Gretton's company again."

"Pardon me," the young man interrupted, with uncontrollable haughtiness, "I have never sought Lady de Gretton's company. I believed the lady to be still Miss Bruce."

Lord de Gretton, twisting his gray moustache with elaborate care, listened with his most supercilious smile, as though gently tolerating an interruption that in no way influenced the predetermined current of his thoughts and speech.

"Just so," he said, with a nod of careless condescension that made Arthur's quick blood boil again; "and being better informed now you will understand

He had travelled incessantly long and far that day; but, was, he seemed incapable of fatigue. He tried to sleep; thoughts centred persistently in he had left, in the girl he had in her misery.

The one fear that overrode all his thoughts was that Nora's return under the accumulating trouble had come upon her. He could to lose her, to see her happy with he thought, with a little tightened generous heart that could ignore sharp pain; but he had left her less hands, and there had been such like the wild glare of madness in backward look.

"Heaven keep her safe and sound," he cried again and again, with a reverential passion, as he leant his head against the carriage window looked out with sad unseeing eyes soft beauty of the starlit summer.

And, while the fervent prayer echoed in his heart, Nora de Gretton knelt by her dead husband's blood on her little white handkerchief, her pretty velvet dress, blood told a long cruel stream along the wall on which he had fallen—that fatal knife-thrust through his heart, which his life had ebbed away.

CHAPTER IX.

"How late the governor is tonight!" Cristine Singleton cried up with a prolonged yawn from her place, she had been indifferently searching her mother came into the room. "down-stairs yet?"

"What a question!" Mrs. Fawcett answered, with a laugh, as she sat up at the well-spread breakfast-table and eagerly turned the envelope, only to put them aside when appointed—

"No letter from Vance again, can the boy be doing?"

"Getting into mischief, of course," Cristine said sharply. "But no

But Lord de Gretton cut the sentence short; wheeling round upon his heel, he stared insolently into the frank blue eyes, and said slowly, with a sneer, while he twisted the ends of his long gray moustache into sharp points—

"So you will have it then—will thrust yourself into the foreground, and be seen! Your companion has little cause to thank you. I wished to ignore Lady de Gretton's escapade, to close my eyes to the awkward fact that my wife, on her wedding-day, wandered out at sunset to entertain her old lover; but you will not let me."

Clear, cold, and cruel, each word fell with sharp distinctness, and stung, as it was intended to sting, not the pale girl round whose overwrought brain a merciful mist was gathering, who heard all that was said in a dull uncomprehending fashion, as though it concerned her not at all—not Nora, but the man who would—how gladly!—have died to defend her.

"For shame!" he cried, with a hearty ringing scorn that would to a more generous opponent have been a convincing proof of his honesty and good faith, but only stung Lord de Gretton's pride sharply, and moved him to a more implacable hate. "Oh"—Arthur flung back his bright head, impatient of his own halting utterance—"where shall I find the words to convince you, if your own knowledge of her innocence and spotless purity be not enough? Nora, tell your husband how you met me here; for his sake and your own, do not leave him under an impression so cruelly false."

Nora started at the direct appeal, but only turned her eyes with a vague troubled stare from one to the other; her lips moved a little, but no sound came from them. Arthur's heart sank within him. Had her brain really turned with its weight of trouble?

"Just so," he said, with a nod of careless condescension that made Arthur's quick blood boil again; "and being better informed now, you will understand that your paths diverge widely from this moment and need never touch again."

"I understand," Arthur returned coldly; and, with a smile of quiet satisfaction, Lord de Gretton turned to his wife.

"Come, Nora," he said authoritatively, "it is time for us to go."

He lifted the little hand that hung so listlessly by her side, and drew it within his arm; the contact chilled his fingers; death itself was not more icy or inert. Nora neither resisted nor aided his efforts; the only sign of life left in her blazed in the burning misery of her eyes.

Mechanically she permitted herself to be drawn towards the path she had descended, ignorant of that last bitter drop still to mingle with her cup—mechanically, without another word or look, she would have passed the man who watched her with an intense and yearning pity that for the moment swallowed up all selfish pain. But, crossing his path, Lord de Gretton paused abruptly, unable to deny himself a Parthian dart.

"As you two are old friends, and must part for ever," he said, with mocking emphasis, "you may be allowed the luxury of a farewell word. Nay, Mr. Beaupre, you are most ungrateful; few men in my position would show such magnanimity as this."

For something like a smothered exclamation broke at last from Arthur Beaupre's white lips. He was heart-sick and weary of the fiendish cruelty with which this man revenged himself and revelled

"Heaven keep her safe and so cried again and again, with a reverential passion, as he leant his head against the carriage window, looked out with sad unseeing eyes at the soft beauty of the starlit summer."

And, while the fervent prayer echoed in his heart, Nora de Gretton knelt by her dead husband's blood on her little white hand, her pretty velvet dress, blood-tinted, a long cruel stream along the lawn on which he had fallen—that fatal knife-thrust through his heart, which his life had ebbed away.

CHAPTER IX.

"How late the governor is tonight!" Christine Singleton cried up with a prolonged yawn from the room she had been indifferently searching for when her mother came into the room. "down-stairs yet?"

"What a question!" Mrs. Bruce answered, with a laugh, as she placed at the well-spread breakfast-table, and eagerly turned the envelope, only to put them aside when appointed—

"No letter from Vance again can the boy be doing?"

"Getting into mischief, of course," Christine said sharply. "But not Vance, mother; I asked you when the governor had come down."

"Of course he has—at least tonight; and glad enough I was to see him, I assure you. I never saw such a state of nervous excitement in my life. Really I think the wedding turned his brain—he has done more than walk about the corridors; that something terrible had happened to Nora."

"To Nora!" Christine echoed with a nervous attempt at a controlled laugh.

Had Mrs. Bruce chanced to look at her daughter, she might have seen the pale face grow suddenly pinched and pale, and the light eyes frightened and guilty glitter. Christine Singleton, who was endowed with a peculiarly small amount of faith in justice and mercy, was, on the other hand, most horribly superstitious, and an abject trust in signs, portents, and warnings.

"Did—did the governor see anything when he asked uncomfortably; and Mrs. Bruce looked up with an astonishment from the housewifely task of rubbing the orange pekoe into a silver teacup."

"Bless me, child, what should I care you will ruin my nerves!" she cried, with a pettish but a consoling consciousness that her nerves were made of no such precious stuff, but were equal to any amount of friction. "He did see at last that it was hardly fair to spoil my sleep, so

But at that moment, moved by some vague impulse, Nora raised her eyes to his, the lovely Irish gray eyes in whose clear truthful depths he had seen every thought and every fancy mirrored in the happy days gone by. Where now were the innocent love, the innocent mirth, the gay girlish sparkle? Something rose in his throat and seemed as though it would strangle him—something that mastered his manhood and brought a mist of tears to dim his vision as he met that blank, hopeless, lost, and miserable gaze.

"Lost!" Yes, that thought sent the last worst pang of all to Arthur Beaupre's loyal and generous heart. Rather would he have seen any intensity of conscious pain than the suggested frenzy of that gaze. She did not seem to know, or rather she seemed to look through him, as though no object stood in her path. Her widely-opened eyes were those of a sleep-walker, haunted by a torturing dream and utterly unconscious of all that was passing around her.

At any cost she must be aroused from this dangerous apathy. Arthur took the cold little hand in his and spoke entreatingly—

"Nora, it is good-bye indeed, now. Heaven bless and shield you, and make you happy!"

She shivered slightly, and he saw her lips twitch; but she repeated the "good-bye" mechanically, and her eyes never softened, though the tears stood thickly in his.

Lord de Gretton made an impatient gesture, and the spell that held Arthur Beaupre was broken. Silently he drew back, and let the married pair pass him; silently he watched them as they made their way up the winding road, now vanishing, now reappearing, as they passed from terrace to terrace up the well-wooded height until they were lost to sight among the tall trees that closed in around the picturesque white house at which Lord de Gretton's honeymoon was to be spent.

Once only Nora turned her graceful head and looked back—and that look was destined to haunt Arthur Beaupre's fancy with cruel pertinacity for many and many a week to come—will haunt him with more or less of horror in the remembrance until he has done with earth and earthly things for ever.

With a little shiver, for the night-air began to grow chill, and he was still weak from recent illness, Arthur pulled his soft hat down over his brows, drew up his coat-collar, and, resolutely fixing his thoughts on the future and turning his

Cristine made no further comment; after all, it made little difference to her whether her step-father made his appearance or not. She had plenty to occupy her thoughts, but unfortunately the food she herself had given them was less entirely sweet now than she had imagined it last night.

Then she had been entirely absorbed in the thought of the ample revenge she had taken upon the girl who had outshone her in every way. With something like an intoxication of delight, she had pictured Nora opening her present and reading the news it contained, pictured the utter horror of the bride of a day when her old lover rose before her triumphantly confident in her truth, and when she had to tell him that with her own hands she had raised up a barrier between them.

The little drama played out on the stage of Cristine's fancy had seemed entirely satisfactory and entertaining last night; amid thunders of applause the curtain had fallen upon a picturesque tableau of her triumph and Nora's crushing defeat—the denouement had been pleasantly complete.

But somehow the brilliant picture faded a little in the colder morning light—disagreeable after-thoughts began to intrude on the girl's mind and fill her with selfish terrors. Now that the intense and irritating jealousy that urged her on to any lengths and blinded her to all but the immediate consequences of her acts had passed into the back-ground, she began to see with alarming sharpness some serious self-made difficulties in her path.

For what happened to Lady de Gretton she cared not one straw. She knew how sure and cruel was the blow she had dealt; the victim might recover from it or die of it, if she chose. But she did care very much what happened to herself; and a spectral army of ugly possibilities paraded menacingly before her till she began to wish, not exactly that the blow had not been struck, but that she herself had figured somewhat less prominently as the avenging angel.

"What a fool I was to write that letter!" she thought, knitting her fair brows and tapping her smart French slipper impatiently on the floor. "She would have known without a word that I had planned it all, and I should not be in her power, as I am now. Of course she will show it to Arthur in self-defence, and then he will never speak to me again; or she may send it to the governor, and then, quiet as he is, this house will hardly hold us both. Once only Nora turned her graceful head and looked back—and that look was destined to haunt Arthur Beaupre's fancy with cruel pertinacity for many and many a week to come—will haunt him with more or less of horror in the remembrance until he has done with earth and earthly things for ever.

With a little shiver, for the night-air began to grow chill, and he was still weak from recent illness, Arthur pulled his soft hat down over his brows, drew up his coat-collar, and, resolutely fixing his thoughts on the future and turning his back upon the scene of so much misery, made his way to the railway station, and was soon on his way to London.

He had travelled incessantly lately, long and far that day; but, weak as he was, he seemed incapable of physical fatigue. He tried to sleep; but his thoughts centred persistently in the place he had left, in the girl he had deserted in her misery.

The one fear that overrode all other in his thoughts was that Nora's brain would turn under the accumulating troubles that had come upon her. He could endure to lose her, to see her happy with another, he thought, with a little tightening of the generous heart that could ignore its own sharp pain; but he had left her in merciless hands, and there had been something like the wild glare of madness in that last backward look.

"Heaven keep her safe and sane!" he cried again and again, with a sort of reverential passion, as he leant his aching head against the carriage window, and looked out with sad unseeing eyes on the soft beauty of the starlit summer night.

And, while the fervent prayer still echoed in his heart, Nora de Gretton knelt by her dead husband's side, with blood on her little white hands and on her pretty velvet dress, blood that ran in a long cruel stream along the white rug on which he had fallen—that followed a knife-thrust through his heart, and with which his life had ebbed away.

CHAPTER IX.

"How late the governor is this morning!" Cristine Singleton cried, looking up with a prolonged yawn from the letter she had been indifferently scanning as her mother came into the room. "Is he down-stairs yet?"

"What a question!" Mrs. Bruce answered, with a laugh, as she took her place at the well-spread break-fast table, and eagerly turned the envelopes on her plate, only to put them aside with a disappointed—

"No letter from Vance again! What can the boy be doing?"

"Getting into mischief, of course!" Cristine said sharply. "But never mind Vance, mother; I asked you whether the governor had come down."

Oh, dear, I have made a horrible mess of it, look which way I will!"

"Do come to breakfast, child; you look quite pinched and wan with hunger," Mrs. Bruce broke in with a brisk cheerfulness that seemed horribly incongruous to Christine; and as the girl mechanically obeyed her summons and drew a chair to the table, she turned to the servant, who still lingered at the sideboard, with the careless question—

"Where is your master, Finnis? Does he know we are at breakfast?"

"He is in the library, ma'am, and I rang the bell twenty minutes ago."

"Perhaps he has gone out," Mrs. Bruce suggested, looking across at her daughter, with the slight contemptuous smile she was wont to bestow upon her husband's unpunctual habits.

But the man negatived this idea decisively.

"Oh, no, ma'am! I took him in a telegram a little while back, and he has not left the room since then, I know."

"A telegram!" Cristine repeated, pushing back her chair, and turning a ghastly hue, horrible to look upon. "Mother, their must be something wrong."

Mrs. Bruce felt by no means comfortable herself; some of the superstitious dread that oppressed her daughter seemed suddenly to pass to her, driving the healthy color from her face and making her clear voice husky and unsteady; but she felt, if only to impress the listening servant, that a sharp rebuke was necessary, and administered it with sufficient dignity and promptitude..

"Of course he has—at least three hours

such a state of nervous excitement in my life. Really I think the wedding has turned his brain—he has done nothing but walk about the corridors declaring that something terrible had happened to Nora."

"Tc Nora!" Cristine echoed, with a nervous attempt at a contemptuous laugh.

Had Mrs. Bruce chanced to glance at her daughter, she might have seen that the pale face grew suddenly pinched-looking and pale, and the light eyes had a frightened and guilty glitter. Cristine Singleton, who was endowed with a singularly small amount of faith in Divine justice and mercy, was, on the other hand, most horribly superstitious, and placed an abject trust in signs, portents, and warnings.

"Did—did the governor see anything?"
she asked uncomfortably; and Mrs.
Bruce looked up with an astonished stare from the housewifely task of measuring the orange pekoe into a silver teapot.

"Bless me, child, what should he see?
You are as great a goose as he is. I declare you will ruin my nerves among you!" she cried, with a pettish laugh,
but a consoling consciousness that her nerves were made of no such penetrable stuff, but were equal to any amount of friction. "He did see at last that it was

Church Debts.

What an outcry is ordinarily made about church debts! They are generally referred to as an evidence that there is a very great deal of depravity in the churches, or nothing of the kind would ever be allowed. Some church dignitaries have set their faces so firmly against anything of the kind, as to positively refuse to have to do with the dedication of any church not entirely paid for. Of course two-thirds of the "of the world"
applaud any such decision as the just and right thing. One "eminent man" has lately taken a good deal of pains to remark, as a most singular thing, that all the leading denominations have a strange habit of rushing in debt. If not in debt already they are surely about to launch themselves into the deep sea. He does not say it outright that all this is very wicked, but that this is the inference.

There are surely two sides to this question. As a matter of fact a large proportion of the very fine churches that now adorn the country would be much smaller,
much less comfortable, and much less creditable in appearance than they are today, if those who had to do with their erection had resolved not to go into debt.
In a growing progressive country, such as ours is, there are few localities able and willing to command sufficient money for church building purposes to meet the growing requirements of the next twenty years. The churches determined not to provide anything more than they can now pay for, may stand on a very solid foundation, but is it probable they will find room to grow with the growth of wealth and population around them? Our church debts have not been an unmixed evil, by any means. The wonder is that the outcry against them has been so universally raised.

Emerson says: "The way to make the world better is by reforming number one,
then there is surely one less villain in the world."

PERSONAL.

In Mr. Spurgeon's fund of illustrative stories is one of a man who use to say to his wife:—"Mary, go to church and pray for us both." But the man dreamed one night that when he and his wife got to the gate of heaven, Peter said:—"Mary, go in for both." He awoke and made up his mind that it was time to become a Christian on his own account.

Several relics of Sir Joshua Reynolds will be seen at the forthcoming exhibition of his works at the Grosvenor Gallery, in London—among them his silver spectacles snuffbox of tortoise shell, trimmed with gold, and the three pen and ink sketches which first attracted attention to his precocious powers, one a little picture of a perch, drawn from life; next a little interior of a library, copied "with all the minuteness and delicacy of Cello, or Cella Bella," and third, a perspective on the back of a Latin theme, done when he was only eight years old.

It is stated that Millais, the painter, is to be made a baronet. He has sufficient property qualification, being worth a million dollars, and is earning a large yearly income. He will be the first painter baronet, as Tennyson has been the first poet peer. Mr. Millais's only sister is the wife of Mr. Lester Wallack. There has been various painter knights like Reynolds, Lawrence, and Sir F. Leighton.

Prince George of Wales, says the London World, is proving himself a real "salt." He is the pet of officers and crew of H. M. S. Canada, and though not backward in his studies or other then conscientious in his duties, he is healthy, hardy, and just a little mischievous. He takes the rough with the smooth without losing his head or temper, and his ruddy, free, and well-set limbs are to be seen first in every kind of sport.

The publication of Lord Lytton's Autobiography moves a correspondent of the London Daily News to remind the public that Lady Lytton lived for many years at Sydenham in comparative poverty, latterly attended by one servant, and assisted by friends; that she died in March, 1882, and was buried at Shirley, near Croydon. No monument marks the grave, but a new "Communion Table" has been presented by friends as a tribute to her memory. Her will was proved, and effects sold, but the proceeds were insufficient to pay her trifling debts.

A monument to the memory of Mozart is about to be erected at Vienna, a century after the maestro's death. The death of Richard Wagner is said to have prompted the erection of this monument. Wagner's admirers intended to raise him a monument shortly after his death, but, hearing this, all the opponents of Wagner waxed wroth, declaring that it would be scandalous if a monument were erected to Wag-

Only a Baby.

One sultry day last summer, at a time when children of the poorer class in Philadelphia were dying by the scores every week, a bloated old man staggered up the steps of a physician's dwelling. The boys shouted after him, "Old Bourbon," the name by which he had been known in the locality in which he lived for many years.

"The baby's worse," he said, standing hat in hand when he met the doctor coming out.

"You've been here for me every day for a week," explained the doctor. "I cannot go again to-day. I told the child's mother there was no chance this morning. It was dying then."

"Won't you come now?"

"No; I have not a minute to spare. There are patients waiting whom I can help."

"Old Bourbon" followed him to his carriage door, twisting his rag of a hat in his shaking hands. "She's—she's all I've got, doctor."

But the doctor, with a pitying nod, drove away, and the old man, nearly sobered by his keen distress, crept home to the little attic where his little grandchild lay dying. Whatever nursing or kindness little Mary had known, had come from "Old Bourbon." Her mother had six other children, and went out washing every day. The poor old drunkard and the innocent baby were left to form a strange friendship for each other. She called for him now feebly, as she lay on her mother's lap.

"Daddy! Daddy! Come to me!"

And then her spirit passed on to the unseen.

"Why, is this you, Bour—I beg your pardon. What is your real name?"

"John Black, sir. I want to take my name again. I'm thinkin' of signin' the pledge 'n' pullin' up for the rest of the time left," stammered the poor wretch.

The clergyman was wise and helpful. John did "pull up." He lived but a few months after that, but he did what he could to live a decent, honest, Christian life in that time.

"The Lord is merciful, John," his friend said to him, as he lay dying.

"I know it, sir. I'm not much acquainted with Him. But I've been tryin' to foller little Mary. I hear her always cryin', 'Daddy, come to me.' I'm comin'." An' I reckon He'll not turn me back."

Even the baby had its work to do, and had done it.

America and Liquor Drinking.

It appears that the Germans are not the largest consumers of beer and other malt liquors, as has generally been supposed. The editor of the Chemical Review, of Chicago, has collected the statistics in regard to drinking from most of the t, if she chose. But she did not know what happened to herself; a strange army of ugly possibilities menacingly before her till she beheld, not exactly that the blow had struck, but that she herself had somewhat less prominently figured as an angel.

"A fool I was to write that letter, knitting her fair brows at her smart French slipper in the floor. 'She would have said a word that I had planned I should not be in her power, w. Of course she will show it in self-defence, and then she will speak to me again; or she may speak to the governor, and then, quiet his house will hardly hold us, dear, I have made a horrible look which way I will!' " "I came to breakfast, child; you pinched and wan with hunger," she broke in with a brisk cheer that seemed horribly incongruous; and as the girl mechanically summoned and drew a chair to her, she turned to the servant, who stood at the sideboard, with the question—

"Is your master, Finnis? I know we are at breakfast?" "In the library, ma'am, and I left twenty minutes ago." "As he has gone out," Mrs. Weston gestured, looking across at her with the slight contemptuous smile she was wont to bestow upon her unpunctual habits.

"The man negatived this idea decisively."

"Ma'am! I took him in a little while back, and he left the room since then, I am afraid."

"Telegram!" Cristine repeated, looking at her chair, and turning a pale, horrible to look upon. "Their must be something."

"Ice felt by no means comfortable; some of the superstitious oppressed her daughter seemingly to pass to her, driving the nail from her face and making her voice husky and unsteady; but only to impress the listening man with a sharp rebuke was denied and administered it with sufficiency and promptitude."

A monument to the memory of Mozart is about to be erected at Vienna, a century after the maestro's death. The death of Richard Wagner is said to have prompted the erection of this monument. Wagner's admirers intended to raise him a monument shortly after his death, but, hearing this, all the opponents of Wagner waxed wroth, declaring that it would be scandalous if a monument were erected to Wagner before one was erected to Mozart. This may be true; but why, ask Wagner's friends, is it only now that such a cry is raised to immortalize the composer?

Oscar Wilde has had a bad time in his native Dublin. The Gaiety Theatre is small, but twice too large for the accommodation of those who went to see and hear the original Bunthorne. Even of those many remained, not to pray, but to carry out their original intention of scoffing. They laughed at his dress, his attitudes, his sentiments, and his language. His manner of meeting interruptions was rather effective. He simply came to a dead halt in the middle of a sentence, and waited till his critics felt themselves the object of general attention, whereupon they held their peace.

King John of Abyssinia has made the following reply to an invitation sent him by the Mahdi to unite forces and together to harry the fruitful plains of Delta: "May the writing of John, the chosen of the Lord, the King of Zion, the King of the Ethiopian Kings, reach the hands of him who is a prophet among the Turks. By the grace of the God of Saints and the intercession of our Lady of Zion, I and my army are keeping well. Praised be the grace of the Highest! How art thou! Thou hast written to me: 'I am a great prophet. I will not seek strife with thee. Peace be between us.' I do not know whether it be the will of God that we should fight against each other. The clergyman was wise and helpful. John did "pull up." He lived but a few months after that, but he did what he could to live a decent, honest, Christian life in that time.

"The Lord is merciful, John," his friend said to him, as he lay dying.

"I know it, sir. I'm not much acquainted with Him. But I've been trying to follow little Mary. I hear her always cryin', 'Daddy, come to me.' I'm comin'." "An' I reckon He'll not turn me back."

Even the baby had its work to do, and had done it.

America and Liquor Drinking.

It appears that the Germans are not the largest consumers of beer and other malt liquors, as has generally been supposed. The editor of the Chemical Review, of Chicago, has collected the statistics in regard to brewing from most of the leading countries in the world. From a table published in that journal it appears that the production of beer in the German Empire amounts to 92 quarts per head. A large portion of this beer is exported, however. In the Austrian Empire the production of beer amounts to 34 quarts per inhabitant. In Great Britain each inhabitant is credited with 115 quarts of very strong beer. In United States the production of beer per inhabitant is 40 quarts. In Denmark it is 117 quarts, in Belgium 71, in France 24, in the Netherlands 51, in Norway 43, in Sweden 40, in Switzerland 39. In Russia only 4 quarts of beer are manufactured for each inhabitant, while the production in Italy is but the tenth part of that amount. Apparently malt liquors are not manufactured in Spain, Portugal, Greece, and Turkey. In most wine-producing countries the consumption of malt liquors is very small. In Russia distilled liquors are principally drank. The three Scandinavian countries consume large quantities of both fermented and distilled liquors. The consumption of beer and other malt liquors is increasing faster in the United States than in any other country in the world. The consumption, however, is chiefly limited to the Northern States. In the States south of the Ohio River there are very few breweries and little demand for them. New York, Pennsylvania, and the States west of them produce nearly all the beer made in the entire country.—Evening Standard

There are surely two sides to this question, matter of fact a large proportion of fine churches that now country would be much smaller, comfortable, and much less in appearance than they are to those who had to do with their debt resolved not to go into debt. In progressive country, such as there are few localities able to command sufficient money for building purposes to meet the requirements of the next twenty years churches determined not to do anything more than they can now stand on a very solid foundation. It is probable they will find now with the growth of wealth and population around them? Our church debts have not been an unhelpful, by any means. The wonder of outcry against them has been fully raised.

Getting there, he found that his valise, containing his vestments, which had come by the train which he should have taken, was locked up in the station, and it took some time to find the station master, who had the key. Getting out his vestments, he ran to the church, where the services were under way, but thought it necessary to have a drink of water before beginning his duties. The only man presumably able to get the water was the organ blower, and he could only go for it on condition that the Bishop took his place at the bellows. Even then no water could be obtained, and the Bishop undertook the service with his throat full of dust. When it was over, by some misunderstanding, there was no carriage in waiting to take him to the house where he was to spend the night, and he had to ride thither in a fish waggon. The horse ran away and upset him into the gutter.

CEMENT FOR TIN AND GLASS.—The following, which has been recommended for joining the metallic to the glass parts of kerosene lamps, is impermeable to all oils: Caustic soda, one ounce; water five ounces; resin, three ounces; plaster of Paris sufficient. Make a solution of the soda in the water, and boil with the resin until this is dissolved. To the liquid add half its weight of plaster, and apply immediately. It sets firmly in half to three quarters of an hour.

"Oh, yes," said the clerk, brightening up, "I'll accept an situation."

BLACK KNOT.—This disease which attacks cherry and plum trees, especially, is the work of a fungus plant called Sporaria morbosa, which is propagated by spores or seeds, and spreads in the young wood by its thread-like roots. These cause warty excrescences several inches long on the sides of the branches, which are greenish and soft during the early part of summer, and attract the curculio to deposit its eggs therein, especially when stone fruit is scarce. Other larvae have also at times been found in these green knots, and this gave rise to the opinion at one time held that insects were the cause of the mischief. It is found, however, that the disease originates under the bark, where insects can have no access. The spores of this fungus are said to ripen on the diseased trees during the winter, and there is no doubt that the disease is contagious. The only remedy is to cut and burn the infected twigs, cutting well down into the healthy wood, as the roots of the fungus extend a considerable distance beyond the excrescence.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Tolman Wheeler of Chicago, who has given about $70,000 to religious corporations, has set apart a piece of land on Washington Boulevard near California street for a theological seminary, and to it he will add $1,000,000 for the buildings and $100,000 for the endowment of the seminary.

The American politicians are at their wits end what to do to stamp out polygamy. A woman has just announced that she knows how the death blow could be given to it right off. She would establish fashionable millinery shops, with fashionable prices, out at Salt Lake city, and the crisis must come. The plan looks feasible enough to every married man of TRUTH's acquaintance. How have all those bald headed reprobates escaped this danger heretofore? Can some one explain. That woman's ingenuity may yet save the nation.

The Christian Guardian is about as hard hitting at opponents as are the ordinary sinners of the political press, when the circumstance appear to call for it, and it is rather facetious too. Writing of the claim now being made for more state aid to University College after a pretty large sum has been swallowed up, the Guardian relieves itself in this style: "The cry is, 'Give, give.' This reply, which is deemed sufficient to silence the voice of complaint, reminds us of the story of a Mormon preacher, who was baptizing some converts in a hole in the ice of a river. One man was accidentally caught by the current and carried under. Nothing daunted, the elder said, 'that fellow has gone under, bring on another.' But the others were not disposed to try it. And it is very likely when our University friends say, 'that endowment has been largely wasted, bring on another,' that Ontario may just hesitate before bringing on another."

It is a common thing to speak of the old aristocratic system of England and other old monarchical countries as producing a system of large land owners and very wealthy persons such as would never be found in connection with a republic. As a matter of fact this idea turns out to be a very great mistake. Under the old land system the monopoly may remain much longer in favored families; but single individuals cannot and do not grow wealthy nearly as quick. One principal reason for all this may be that in an old country there are fewer persons of a fair amount of means to be fleeced, and consequently the fleecing cannot be nearly so profitable. In the United States, just now, the number of millionaires grows wonderfully and the millionaires are amassing such wealth as the old world never heard of. Of course the proportionate number of wealthy persons increases as well.

BODY SNATCHING.

A Doctor's Exciting Adventure at a Cleveland Cemetery—He Narrowly Escapes being killed.

"What are the duties of a demonstrator of anatomy?" This question was propounded yesterday by a Leader reporter, who has noticed that this position was invariably filled by a young doctor with very little experience.

"To steal bodies," was the reply of the old practitioner of whom the question was asked. "It is very seldom that an old-established physician will consent to do such work, and the position is therefore given to young men who are anxious to get along in the profession. I used to be demonstrator of anatomy at one of the city colleges. It was different then than now, and the business was attended with much more danger than at present. I was pretty fortunate, however, in having some good friends in office, and always escaped arrest."

"Did you have any thrilling adventures?"

"Yes, indeed. On several occasions I had pretty close calls. I shall never forget one night at Woodland Cemetery. I went with the janitor of the college to get a body. We made our way into the cemetery without being noticed, and, having located the grave, set to work. The janitor handled the pick and shovel while I did the watching. He worked away for some time, and the thud of his pick and the grating of his shovel were the only sounds that broke the ghostly stillness. I had become somewhat neglectful of my vigil, and was not paying much attention to my surroundings. All of a sudden, from behind the tree where I was hidden, I saw the janitor drop his shovel and break into a run. I looked around to see what had caused his flight, and saw two men approaching me. I knew they were the cemetery watchmen, and not fancying the idea of being caught, I followed the janitor's example and started to run. I headed for Woodland avenue and thought if I could outrun the watchmen I could get away without trouble. Just before I reached the fence, a board affair—that was before the iron fence was built—I saw that the men were trying to head me off. I strained every nerve and tried to clear the fence at one jump. My feet struck the top board and I fell back into the cemetery. Regaining my feet and taking a new start, I made another jump. My feet struck the top again and I was balancing myself to throw my body over on the sidewalk when one of the watchmen shot at me. The bullet whistled past my ear, and I fell off the fence. The men doubtless thought I was dead, for they did not come to the fence, and I soon crawled away and escaped.

The Canada Steel Company, of Nova Scotia, is in the hands of the official liquidators. The business is being carried on pending the settlement of the company's financial difficulties.

Rev. A. J. Bray, of the Congregational Church, Montreal, has sent in his resignation, and intends to devote himself to the ministry and other secular pursuits. He has not been as successful in his ministerial work as his friends expect.

A Montreal paper says that the consequence of the heavy church taxes at Notre Dame and St. Patrick (Roman Catholic) of that city is that five pastors have requested the government to grant permission to petition the government to come to their aid.

Ontario has under license 1,000,000 acres, paying the Government for timber dues and ground rent $48,500 square miles, giving a gross revenue to the Government of $668,596, so that Ontario receives a form of revenue, $30,000 per year while Quebec gets only $14.

The observation is no doubt correct.

Consumption of Beer in the Paris Hospitals.

As some answer to the protests which have been made against his peremptory prohibition of beer for the patients of the hospitals, the Director of the Assistance Publique publishes some of the figures, which have justified as he thinks, his too indiscriminate resolution. It seems that the quantity of beer consumed at the Hotel Dieu rose from 37 litres in 1875 to 13,516 in 1882; at the Pitie from 700 to 8,995; at the Charite from 1,876 to 13,473; and at the St. Antoine from 3,768 to 14,546. The whole of the hospital establishments consumed 28,695 litres in 1875 and 151,174 in 1882. The consumption of vin ordinaire (which has the reputation of being very good in the Paris hospitals) rose from 1,893,128 litres in 1875 to 2,686,728 in 1882; that of Banyuls wine rose from 56,881 litres to 128,584, and Bordeaux from 78,814 litres to 103,988. There were also 1,130,531 litres of milk consumed in 1875, and 2,675,699 in 1882. The increase in the consumption in beer, therefore, has not been caused by its substitution for wine or milk, the beer being an absolute addition. "But who drank all this beer?" asked one of the municipal councillors. "That I cannot tell," replied M. Quentin, "though it is certain that all these supplementary quantities did not profit the patients."—Medical Times and Gazette.

The Grand Trunk Railway is evidently very enterprising and successful in extending its connections in all directions. A good proportion of the former short independent lines in this country are now absorbed by it, and in Michigan it is said to control more miles of road than any railway in the State except the Michigan Central. The bullet whistled past my ear, and I fell off the fence. The men doubtless thought I was dead, for they did not come to the fence, and I soon crawled away and escaped.

"I once went down in the country with several other men after a body," continued the doctor. "We found the grave all right and dug down to the coffin, which it was necessary to break open. We had brought along an old coat to lay over it, so that the blows of the hammer would be deadened. This was placed on the coffin, and one of the men went down and began pounding. In a few minutes the grave was filled with a blue sulphurous light, and a thin spiral of smoke began to ascend. What little superstition there was in our natures asserted itself. The man in the grave hastily got out, and we stood around the pit horror-struck. The idea of anything supernatural was soon discarded, however, and we began to advance theories as to the cause of the strange light. One suggested that it might be an infernal machine that would soon explode. We then scattered, and waited to see the ground rend asunder. No explosion occurred, however, and finally some one advanced the theory that there might have been some matches in the pocket of the coat. That was found to be the case, and the blows of the hammer had ignited them. But you can imagine how we felt to see that grave suddenly lighted up in that peculiar manner."

"Did you get the body?"

"Oh, yes. It weighed nearly two hundred pounds, and it was a hard job to get it out, but we got it to Cleveland."

"You say the business was more dangerous then than now?"

"Yes; you see at that time the medical colleges had no legal right to any body, and if doctors were found with one in their possession they were liable to arrest. It is different now. The law provides that the body of paupers who have no friends shall be turned over to medical colleges on demand. The demonstrators of anatomy can at present, therefore, get plenty of bodies for the asking, while in my time a prison or may be death stared us in the face when we started out in our expeditions."—Cleveland Leader.

Laboring and Managing.

called the Upper Canadian American Oracle, and was Newark, now Niagara. Col father of the Canadian press the introduction of the printing press into Canada and the abolition of slavery in Canada occurred about the year 1827, an interesting though not remarkable coincidence.

The Canadian Manufacturer. Every week we hear of fresh enterprises in the Northwest. Always a problem for that country is it is as certain as any future can be that over its vast expanse will have fuel cheap and in quantity. It cannot be brought to even by railway, but the steady winning insures that there will be the best transportation, next to the water way, to thousands of homes. The road over the snow costs 10 cents a ton drawing coal even forty miles. The water would not very severely tax the horse. One week's teaming, outside, should supply him fuel for the winter. The difference which this unsupplied supply is going to make in the future is enormous, and it will tell greatly on the elements ere another year be past.

UNITED STATES.

Already this winter it is estimated that over $20,000 worth of property has been stolen from express waggoners in New York.

A terrible fire occurred at Joliet, Illinois, totally consuming a Catholic Convent, in which twenty-six young women, school girls, lost their lives. The young women's rooms were in the confusion no one could find the keys. They could not be rescued. The loss of property is estimated at $160,000.

HORSE MAXIMS

Use the curry-comb lightly. If used roughly it is a source of trouble.

Let the horse have some exercise every day; otherwise he will be listless and have bad feet.

Let the heels be well brushed every night. Dirt, if allowed to accumulate, causes grease and sore heels.

Whenever a horse is very hot, leave him till he is rubbed quiet. He will probably get a chill if not.

Change the litter partially every day and entirely in others every week. Brush out and clean the stall.

Let the horse's litter be dry underneath as well as on top. It should not be on hot, fermented manure, but soft and brings on lameness.

In the States farther on West, as well as in the several New England States, its influence is every year extending. Some very intelligent people are very much of opinion that too many of the numerous terrible accidents and other mishaps so constantly taking place on the Grand Trunk occur in consequence of there now being entirely too much control, and too much road, in the hands of a single set of leading officers, thereby necessitating too much responsibility in the hands of mere under-strapers. What the public would like to see on the part of the Grand Trunk is more enterprise and success in establishing double tracks along its main lines of travel. These come too slowly for the public safety. Hurry up, gentlemen; the Grand Trunk is much behind most of the leading American roads in this respect.

The Difference.

In Europe a woman begins her social career after her marriage, and is a greater belle at forty than at twenty. She is supposed to have acquired some ideas, to be a more agreeable person at the latter age, and is more sought for as a personage at all dinners, balls and entertainments. In America she is too often ignored at that age, and called passee.

Laboring and Managing.

Some old fashioned notions about the value of example have induced managers of mechanical establishments to become shop hands and to spend their time among their workmen as one of themselves, sharing their employments. To a certain extent such a practice, occasionally, may have a beneficial effect on the workmen without injury to the business. But there are cares and duties connected with the successful prosecution of any business that are not wholly those of the employees. A business must be managed as certainly as the work must be done, and it requires an unusually versatile man who can be one of his own workmen and their own manager at the same time. If to these dual duties he adds that of the proper oversight of his financial and general out-shop business, he must be a rare man to make a success. It may be a matter of personal pride to be able to boast like Boudierby, Gradgrind's friend, but it may be a costly indulgence; for draughting, correspondence, and reception of customers, the overlooking of bills, and the supervision of books as much demand the care and eye of the master as the direct guidance of the workmen. This last can be delegated to a salaried foreman, or to a first-class workman, with an addition to his pay for responsibility; but the others cannot be safely left to any but the proprietor himself.

"To-day is yours; to-morrow may belong to others." What are you giving us? Won't to-morrow be hours also?

A terrible fire occurred at Illinois, totally consuming Catholic Convent, in which twenty-six young women, school, lost their lives. The young women's rooms were in the confusion no one could find the keys. They could not be rescued. The loss of life is estimated at $160,000.

When a horse comes off a first thing is to walk him about; if he is brought in too hot, vents him from taking cold.

Never allow any one to torment a horse in the stable. The animal is the torment and does not understand the joke. Vicious habits are brought on.

To procure a good coat of hair use plenty of rubbing; plenty of "elbow grease" softens the skin and promotes general health.

Let his legs be well rubbed every hand. Nothing so soon reveals a thorn or splinter. It also detects thorns or splinters the animal and enables him to be comfortable.

Let your horse stand loose without being tied up to anything. Pain and weariness from action induce bad habits and feet and other disorders.

Look often at the animal for disease or wounds in these neglected places, soon become neglected, soon become neglected. Farm, Field and Fireside.

Quebec has 48,500 square miles under license, giving a gross revenue to the Province of $668,596, so that Ontario receives, in the form of revenue, $30,000 per square mile, while Quebec gets only $14.

The Canada Pacific Railway now has now in operation 3,500 miles of telegraph wires, radiating from Winnipeg as follows: A triple wire to Brandon, a double wire to the summit of the Rockies, a double wire to Port Arthur, and a single wire to Manitou, Neche, Stonewall, and West Selkirk.

The first newspaper published north of the St. Lawrence was the Quebec Gazette, the initial number of which came out in 1776. Seventeen years after, the pioneer paper of Upper Canada appeared. It was called the Upper Canada Gazette, or American Oracle, and was published at Newark, now Niagara. Col. Wylie, the father of the Canadian press, notes that the introduction of the printing press in Canada and the abolition of slavery in Canada occurred about the same time—an interesting though not remarkable coincidence.

Take in Sill.

Money has now become so scarce, and times so dull, that a good many men are more thoughtful than they were a few weeks ago. "In time of adversity consider" is a wise remark of the wise man. Hundreds and hundreds of our ambitious business men see how foolish it has all turned out to lock up so much of their money in speculations in Northwest lands. Of course, they did not intend to lock their money up there, but it is locked up all the same, and much of it must necessarily remain so possibly for years to come. Three or four years ago Manitoba speculation was the rage and many speculators saw millions in it, because some of their friends had been there and made thousands, or tens of thousands. What a rush there was! Of course, things have much changed now, and men who expected to see their money returned with handsome profits in a few months at most, must spend years of patient waiting and watching. We have no means of knowing how many millions of old Canada capital is now locked up in western land investments, but there is certainly enough to have a serious effect in making our hard times much worse at home than they would have otherwise been. However, all that cannot be avoided now. It is just barely possible that the same men will be wiser when the next tempting speculation presents itself.

"On their Shape."

In breeding for form it is a practice of chicken fanciers, who are probably the best breeders in the world, to put extremes together to produce a happy medium. For instance, to get a perfect length of back in the chicks it was necessary to couple a short-back cock with long, rangy hens. This rule could be followed with profit in breeding cattle, so far as outward form was concerned, but when we come to the milking quality, like the trotting quality in a horse, the question of form seems absolutely to have nothing to do with it. We say this advisedly too, notwithstanding the numerous prescriptions for a perfect cow's form that are going the round of the papers. This can be proved thus: Let one man select all the cows of moderate form in a dairy, and another pick out the same number from those left with a view solely to the amount of milk they give, and a thousand to one the last lot are the best cows. In selecting breeders for milk we cannot choose the two extremes, but are compelled to put pedigree with pedigree and hope for the best. This rule does not apply so well with thoroughbreds that have been bred for form for so many generations.—American Dairyman.

It is the little that fret and worry us. A

The Canadian Manufacturer says:—Every week we hear of fresh coal discoveries in the Northwest. Already the fuel problem for that country is solved, and it is as certain as any future contingency can be that over its vast extent settlers will have fuel cheap and in abundance. It cannot be brought to every man's door by railway, but the steady winter's sleighing insures that there will be the cheapest transportation, next to that by railway, to thousands of homes. The winter road over the snow costs nothing, and drawing coal even forty miles from a station would not very severely tax the settler. One week's teaming, or two at the outside, should supply him for the year. The difference which this unlimited coal supply is going to make in the Northwest is enormous, and it will tell greatly on settlement ere another year be over.

UNITED STATES.

Already this winter it is reported that over $20,000 worth of property has been stolen from express waggons in New York.

A terrible fire occurred at Belleville, Illinois, totally consuming a Roman Catholic Convent, in which no less than twenty-six young women, scholars at the school, lost their lives. The doors of the young women's rooms were locked, and in the confusion no one could find the keys. They could not be rescued in consequence. The loss of the property is estimated at $160,000.

"A DROP OF JOY IN EVERY WORD."

Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Purgative Pellets" and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. Use the curry-comb lightly. When used roughly it is a source of great pain. Let the horse have some exercise every day; otherwise he will be liable to fever or bad feet.

Let the heels be well brushed out every night. Dirt, if allowed to cake in, causes grease and sore heels.

Whenever a horse is washed, never leave him till he is rubbed quite dry. He will probably get a chill if neglected.

Change the litter partially in some parts and entirely in others every morning; brush out and clean the stall thoroughly.

Let the horse's litter be dry and clean underneath as well as on top. Standing on hot, fermented manure makes the hoofs soft and brings on lameness.

When a horse comes off a journey, the first thing is to walk him about till he is cool, if he is brought in hot. This prevents him from taking cold.

Never allow any one to tickle your horse in the stable. The animal only feels the torment and does not understand the joke. Vicious habits are thus easily brought on.

To procure a good coat on your horse, use plenty of rubbing and brushing. Plenty of "elbow grease" opens the pores, softens the skin and promotes the animal's general health.

Let his legs be well rubbed by the hand. Nothing so soon removes strain. It also detects thorns or splinters, soothes the animal and enables him to feel comfortable.

Let your horse stand loose, if possible, without being tied up to the manger. Pain and weariness from a continued position induce bad habits and cause swollen feet and other disorders.

Look often at the animal's legs and feet. Disease or wounds in these parts, if at all neglected, soon become dangerous. — Farm, Field and Fireside.

Child Desertion.

One day last week Mr. Benoni Briggs was unexpectedly made the guardian of a four year old child. A man named Chas.
Haynes, who resided in Napanee some years ago but who has recently been living near Bath, called at Mr. Briggs' and told a pitiful tale of the death of his wife and child.
He asked Mrs. Briggs to allow him to leave his six year old daughter there for half an hour while he went to see Chief Allen. He did not return as agreed, and after a few days Mr. Briggs set about trying to find somebody to adopt the little urchin, but no person would take her because of her ill-temper and bad training. The father returned on Wednesday and offered to pay Mrs. Briggs if she would take care of the child which she wouldn't assent to. The lady has not yet been relieved of the care of the youngster.

—The Orange True Blues will hold their second annual ball in the Town Hall this evening.

—The Rahbun Company have already expended $175,000 on the N. T. & Q. Railway. A pretty good record for Deseronto.

—Mr. J. Clark of Trenton has contracted to string telegraph wires along the Central Ontario Railway from Picton to Wollaston.

—Mrs. Susan Otton, who some three years ago carried on business here as a member of the firm of Misses Hanly & Otton, died in Kingston a few days ago.

—The Street and Bridge Committee have examined the swing bridge and find a new structure a necessity. They have applied to the County Council for assistance and it is likely it will be given.

—The man who claims the authorship of the "Beautiful Snow" is not so numerous as in past years. After the experiences of this month the man's life would not be safe who would set up any such claim.

—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Napanee Cemetery Company for the purpose of electing directors and the transaction of other business, will be held in the Council Chamber on Monday afternoon next at 2.30 p.m.

—The morning express train from the east on Tuesday was delayed seven hours by a freight train getting stuck in a snow drift near Lansdowne. The midday express train was four hours and the evening train three hours late, caused by the road being blocked with snow.

—Owing to the storm Messrs. Gibbard & Son's great cost sale of furniture has been extended till the 9th of February. Their stock is unusually fine and parties in want of furniture should avail themselves of this opportunity of purchasing cheaply.

—"Why go freezing around?" Yes, why, when as will be seen by an advertisement in another column that W. A. Rose & Co. are selling warm, stylish and durable overcoats at less than cost. Their stock is being cleared out at a great sacrifice.

—The People's Boot and Shoe store continues to gain favour with the public. The best goods, most complete assortment and living prices are the characteristics of this establishment. Just now bargains may be had in all kinds of winter goods. Give the "People's" a call. Campbell House block.

—Mayor Joy held his first court yesterday. The only prisoner was a "drunk and disorderly." The Mayor dismissed him with a warning. As the man prepared to leave he said to His Worship, "You'll not be as hard on us as the old Mayor." "Don't you trust me," was the reply, and His Worship said it as though he meant it.

—Rev. M. L. Pearson preached the funeral sermon of the late John W. Bristol in the C. M. Church last Sunday morning to a fair congregation. There would have been a larger attendance had it not been for the bad state of the roads and the inclemency of the weather. The funeral of the deceased, on Saturday, was largely attended, many of the leading men of county being in the procession.

—A new tea firm has been organized in town composed of Messrs. W. S. Detlor, E. M. Fralick and Alex. Henry, to be known as the Ontario Tea Company. Mr. T. McLroy, for many years with Messrs. H. & W. J. Crothers of Kingston, is the traveller of the Co. Mr. McLroy was, on the eve of his departure from Kingston, handsomely entertained by his former employees, who parted with him most regretfully.

I cured the same with Down's Elixir.

—The Firemen's oyster supper in the Town Hall Tuesday evening was very largely patronized and the spread was highly creditable to the Brigade. Upwards of four hundred persons sat down to the well laid tables. After supper Mayor Joy took the chair and made a suitable address, followed by Chief Constable Allen, who also was most happy in his remarks. A

After business was disposed of the members adjourned to Mr. W. Baker's restaurant, where he provided an excellent supper for them in fine style. The next county grand meeting will be held in Kingston, on the 2nd Friday in January, 1885.

Hymeneal.

Mr. T. E. Flaherty, of this town, was married on Tuesday last at Belleville to Miss Maggie Lynch, eldest daughter of Mr. Michael Lynch, who resides near that city. The ceremony was quietly performed by Rev. Father O'Donoghue at the R. C. Church. The groom was supported by Mr. Jos. Foltz, and the bride by her sister, Miss Mary Lynch. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents, among which were the following:—

Silver fruit stand, Mr. Jas. Faltz; silver water pitcher, Mrs. W. Brady; silver cake dish, Miss Nellie O'Hern; set China dishes, Miss Mary Lynch; one dozen silver knives and forks, Miss Nellie Lynch; silver tea pot, Miss Mary Foltz; six silver napkin rings, Mrs. Davis; glass set, Miss Flagher; card receiver, Mr. W. Brady; half dozen table spoons, Miss S. Lynch; handsome lamp, Mr. Garthen; handsome clock, Mr. —.

"Ted" and his handsome young bride arrived in town Wednesday evening. Our young friend has our hearty congratulations along with those of a host of friends for happiness and prosperity.

Warden's Supper.

The oyster supper at Dickens' restaurant last night given by the Warden, Mr. B. C. Lloyd, to the members of the County Council and friends, was a very pleasant affair. Mr. Lloyd occupied the chair and Mr. John Herring the vice-chair. Forty-two sat down to the tables, and oysters of the best quality were served out "regardless of expense." After supper the following toasts were drunk: The chair proposed "The Queen," the company sang "God Save the Queen"; "Governor-General," responded to by Capt. Polley; "Dominion Parliament and Ontario Legislature," responded to by Messrs. Wm. Miller, Roe and Morden; the vice-chair proposed "The Warden and County Council," responded to by the Warden, Mr. Johnston and members of the County Council; "The Mayor and Town Council," responded to by the Mayor and Reeve; "Our Educational Institutions," responded to by Messrs. Burrows, McGuin and Hall; "The Learned Professions," responded to by Messrs. Morden and Williams; "The Press," responded to by Messrs. Lawless and Templeton; "Ex-Warden," responded to by Messrs. Wood, Doller and Wm. Miller; "Ex-Councillors," responded to by ex-Mayor James and Messrs. Herring and Parrott; "The Ladies," responded to by Messrs. John Wilson, A. L. Morden and Chief Allen; "Our Agricultural Interests," responded to by Chief Allen, President of the Agricultural Association. A very pleasant evening was spent and after many congratulations and prophecies for the future Warden and County Council the party sang "God Save the Queen" and dispersed about 12 o'clock.

U. E. LOYALIST MEMORIAL CHURCH.

[To the Editor of THE EXPLORER.]

DEAR SIR.—As my letters upon the subject of a U. E. Loyalist Memorial seem to have occasioned some questions upon the part of several persons, I have done me the favor to read with your kind permission the preface to the principal of them.

The first misconception is that the first church project is a sharp scheme to raise money from the place of worship in my parish. The advantage of the feeling of the U. E. Loyalist matters. This is no doubt coloring to put upon my part, not the right one. The truth is, I converse of this, viz: That I advantage of our need of a church in this town to erect an enduring monument to the brave pioneers of this part.

The second wrong impression is that this Church of England substitute for some general monument, but this is far from the truth. I am quite aware that such a monument have no national character or it is a partial scheme in the general one, not the best absolute best perhaps which one in my circumstances could undertake. I am happy to say that the proposition with much favor from gentlemen some of the first positions in the town will appear when the prospect is clear.

In the last place, it has been said that I desire to monopolize the erecting a memorial Loyalist Church. It shall be the only one in the town of Quinte's Bay. But this is a avail themselves of this opportunity of purchasing cheaply.

—“Why go freezing around?” Yes, why, when as will be seen by an advertisement in another column that W. A. Rose & Co. are selling warm, stylish and durable overcoats at less than cost. Their stock is being cleared out at a great sacrifice.

—The People's Boot and Shoe store continues to gain favour with the public. The best goods, most complete assortment and living prices are the characteristics of this establishment. Just now bargains may be had in all kinds of winter goods. Give the “People's” a call. Campbell House block.

—Mayor Joy held his first court yesterday. The only prisoner was a “drunk and disorderly.” The Mayor dismissed him with a warning. As the man prepared to leave he said to His Worship, “You'll not be as hard on us as the old Mayor.” “Don't you trust me,” was the reply, and His Worship said it as though he meant it.

—Rev. M. L. Pearson preached the funeral sermon of the late John W. Bristol in the C. M. Church last Sunday morning to a fair congregation. There would have been a larger attendance had it not been for the bad state of the roads and the inclemency of the weather. The funeral of the deceased, on Saturday, was largely attended, many of the leading men of county being in the procession.

—A new tea firm has been organized in town composed of Messrs. W. S. Detlor, E. M. Fralick and Alex. Henry, to be known as the Ontario Tea Company. Mr. T. McLroy, for many years with Messrs. H. & W. J. Crothers of Kingston, is the traveller of the Co. Mr. McLroy was, on the eve of his departure from Kingston, handsomely entertained by his former employees, who parted with him most regretfully.

“Lost the cough I long did know
Many years I felt its blow,
Without the use of pills or blister,
I cured the same with Down's Elixir.”

Thousands of affidavits prove That it doth man's ills remove,
Coughs and colds and hooping cough
By its power soon are off.” 8-4.

The Firemen's oyster supper in the Town Hall Tuesday evening was very largely patronized and the spread was highly creditable to the Brigade. Upwards of four hundred persons sat down to the well laid tables. After supper Mayor Joy took the chair and made a suitable address, followed by Chief Constable Allen, who also was most happy in his remarks. A musical programme by Messrs. Ackroyd, Black and Tilley, interspersed with addresses by Revs. Card, Pearson and L. A. Betts, followed. At the close the election of a fine three storey cake between Mr. D. W. Allison, M.P. and Mr. M. W. Pruyn, took place. The votes were 5 cents each, and the polling resulted in favor of Mr. Pruyn by a “large majority.” Mr. Allison was represented by Mr. P. McAlpin and Mr. Pruyn by Mr. C. A. Cornell. The cake realized $9. The voting was not spirited. Wednesday morning the cake was presented to Mr. Pruyn who donated it to the Captain, accompanied by a $5 bill for the Company.

The Value of a Christmas Present.

The jewellers are now being besieged by the Christmas present recipient fiend. One dropped in on a leading jeweller a few days ago. She was young and was accompanied by her mother. She produced a pair of “gold” bracelets and asked the gentlemanly attendant their value, remarking at the same time that they were a Christmas present.

“Four dollars and a half,” was the reply.

“Is that all?” she asked, and turning to her mother she remarked, “I'll send them right back to him.”

Young men should be careful what value they place on the presents they give their sweethearts. The girls have a way of finding out the true value.

The Greatest Healing Compound

Is a preparation of carbolic acid, vaseline and cerate called McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. It will cure any sore, cut, burn or bruise when all other preparations fail. Call at T. A. Huffman's and A. W. Grange's drug stores and get a package. Twenty-five cents is all it costs.

The groom was supported by Mr. Jos. Foltz, and the bride by her sister, Miss Mary Lynch. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents, among which were the following:—

Silver fruit stand, Mr. Jas. Faltz; silver water pitcher, Mrs. W. Brady; silver cake dish, Miss Nellie O'Hern; set China dishes, Miss Mary Lynch; one dozen silver knives and forks, Miss Nellie Lynch; silver tea pot, Miss Mary Foltz; six silver napkin rings, Mrs. Davis; glass set, Miss Flagher; card receiver, Mr. W. Brady; half dozen table spoons, Miss S. Lynch; handsome lamp, Mr. Garthen; handsome clock, Mr. —.

“Ted” and his handsome young bride arrived in town Wednesday evening. Our young friend has our hearty congratulations along with those of a host of friends for happiness and prosperity.

Warden's Supper.

The oyster supper at Dickens' restaurant last night given by the Warden, Mr. B. C. Lloyd, to the members of the County Council and friends, was a very pleasant affair. Mr. Lloyd occupied the chair and Mr. John Herring the vice-chair. Forty-two sat down to the tables, and oysters of the best quality were served out “regardless of expense.” After supper the following toasts were drunk: The chair proposed “The Queen,” the company sang “God Save the Queen”; “Governor-General,” responded to by Capt. Polley; “Dominion Parliament and Ontario Legislature,” responded to by Messrs. Wm. Miller, Roe and Morden; the vice-chair proposed “The Warden and County Council,” responded to by the Warden, Mr. Johnston and members of the County Council; “The Mayor and Town Council,” responded to by the Mayor and Reeve; “Our Educational Institutions,” responded to by Messrs. Burrows, McGuin and Hall; “The Learned Professions,” responded to by Messrs. Morden and Williams; “The Press,” responded to by Messrs. Lawless and Templeton; “Ex-Warden,” responded to by Messrs. Wood, Doller and Wm. Miller; “Ex-Councillors,” responded to by ex-Mayor James and Messrs. Herring and Parrott; “The Ladies,” responded to by Messrs. John Wilson, A. L. Morden and Chief Allen; “Our Agricultural Interests,” responded to by Chief Allen, President of the Agricultural Association. A very pleasant evening was spent and after many congratulations and prophecies for the future Warden and County Council the party sang “God Save the Queen” and dispersed about 12 o'clock.

Personals.

—Miss Butler of Demorestville is visiting at Mr. G. E. Maybee's.

—Miss Emma Miller of North Fredericksburgh is a guest of Mr. K. J. Strong.

—Miss Blanche Williams has returned from her visit to Syracuse and Watertown, N.Y.

—Mr. Walter Russell has sold the Napanee cheese factory to Mr. J. K. McCorgan of Belleville.

—Rev. J. J. Bogert during his stay in town was the guest of Dr. Bristol and Mr. R. G. Wright.

—Messrs. K. J. Strong & Co. are selling the balance of their horse blankets and bells at cost. Bargains assured. Give them a call.

—We regret to learn that Alex. Smith, Esq., Manager of the Merchants' Bank, is dangerously ill. He has been unable to leave his residence for some three weeks. Many friends in town and throughout the province wish him speedy recovery.

—Mr. S. J. Potter of Campbellford, brother of Mr. R. H. Potter of Napanee and formerly a resident of this town, was among those who were injured by the accident on the Grand Junction division of the Grand Trunk Railway near Stirling on Saturday last. He sustained a slight wound and his right knee was bruised.

Narrow Chance of Escape.

A person exposed to the sudden changes of our northern climate has little chance of escaping from colds, sore throat, rheumatism, frost bites, and other troubles incident to change of temperature, to say nothing of accidents and emergencies. The best external and internal ready remedy is Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE'S CHURCH.

Visit of Rev. J. J. Bogert, the Former Rector.

Large congregations assembled in St. Mary Magdalene's church, last Sunday, to welcome Rev. J. J. Bogert, Rector of St. Alban's, Ottawa, formerly rector of this parish. In the morning the reverend gentleman occupied the pulpit and preached an excellent sermon. In the evening the diocesan missionary meeting was held, Rev. Mr. Bogert being the delegate of the mission board. After the service, Venerable Archdeacon Jones pointed out the importance of the mission work in the diocese and how little attention had been given it by the Napanee congregation last year, the report showing larger subscriptions from Camden East, which was itself up to the present year a mission, and from Tyendinaga, than from Napanee. He hoped the report for this year would make a better showing. Rev. Mr. Bogert, before entering upon the subject of his visit, expressed the pleasure he experienced in meeting with his former parishioners whom he labored among for nearly twenty years. He congratulated them on the evidences of the church's progress, not only financially, but in the means adopted in making the worship of God more attractive, by bright music and tasteful decoration of the church. He never saw their beautiful church look brighter or prettier. In the decorations he saw the work of loving hands and he trusted all was done for the glory of God. After paying a tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Chamberlain, and expressing the hope that on the occasion of his next visit he would find a window inserted in the church to her memory, he laid a statement of the mission board's finances before the congregation. He showed that the board was compelled, in order to lower its debt, to reduce the grants to missions where much larger grants than the original were necessary. He pointed out that in Ven. Archdeacon Jones' rural deanery many more missionaries were needed than the one asked for, but unless there was a large increase in the contributions of the people they could not be sent. In concluding he made a strong appeal for liberal contributions.

Saved Army Troubles.

[To the Editor of THE EXPRESS.]

SIR—In THE EXPRESS of a recent date I noticed an item referring to some troubles in the Saved Army, also expressing the hope that the Army would run along all right, as other officers had been elected. Now, the facts of the case are these: For some time past the work in some of the outposts has been badly managed, which was most discouraging to lovers of decency and order. It would seem that the object of some of the officers was to get all the money they could and leave the post as much in debt as possible, our noble General, himself, being a consenting party to such work. This was the cause of the troubles in Napanee. They could not get the money to pay for tramping and the like, at least for the past two months. Napanee has not got any money for gospel tramps, and because some stood up for what was right, they got such epistolary rebukes.

The above, I understand, came from Major Moore to Mr. Chas. Stevens, our late treasurer. Under such circumstances is it any wonder that the Army has not got along well of late? I think it might do the parties I refer to, good, to read the 7th chapter of Joshua and govern themselves accordingly. One of the paid officers a few weeks ago, when in Napanee, sang, "I'm right down glad that I ever joined the army," and I believed him, for he had got a good supply of clothes by so doing, stripes, brass buttons, &c., and to quote his own words on leaving Picton last December: "I have more clothes than I know what to do with." This, perhaps, explains why the army accounts were torn out of the army books last October or November in Picton.

MR. EDITOR,—I suppose it takes the whole family of "Victoria Cabbage Leaves" to make one good head, for I noticed in your last issue a squib from one of the "leaves," and judging from the depth and quality of its epistle I should think that the whole family would scarcely form half a head, and if they did it would be of the species of cabbage called "Low Dutch." Mr. Editor, I suppose you know what the Low Dutch cabbage is like; but for fear you do not I will describe it. It grows low (not aspiring) is very leafy and makes quite an appearance; is quite a size in circumference, but if you take hold of it to see if it is solid, as good cabbage always is, you will be very much surprised as your finger will almost go through it. I know your correspondent belongs to that class. Low Dutch cabbage is never used for anything except to make saurkaraut and to feed to cows; and if you do make saurkaraut out of it it takes an enormous quantity to make a barrel. Mr. Editor, may-flowers and daisies are no specialty out here, as the place abounds in flowers of all kinds, but Victoria cabbage leaves are, for I only see "one" passing and repassing occasionally, and the farmers do not care to waste ground in trying to cultivate such trash. I suppose when the favorite mool cow refused to be milked and gave her final kick, that the pail hit the head of the cabbage and knocked off this "leaf," and likely it has been blowing around through the snow drifts, mud and rain ever since, and finally thought it would light on the Pleasant Valley correspondents. As for that canine that hurt its foot I am glad to say that it is entirely better, which is a great deal more than I can say for V. ## U. E. LOYALIST MEMORIAL CHURCH.

[To the Editor of THE EXPRESS.]

DEAR SIR.—As my letters upon the subject of a U. E. Loyalist Memorial Church seem to have occasioned some misconceptions upon the part of several of those who have done me the favor to read them, I will with your kind permission proceed to correct the principal of them.

The first misconception is that this memorial church project is a sharp scheme on my part to raise money from the public for a new place of worship in my parish by taking advantage of the feeling of the hour on U. E.
Loyalist matters. This is no doubt a plausible coloring to put upon my motives, but not the right one. The truth is just the converse of this, viz: That I wish to take advantage of our need of a church in Adol-phustown to erect an enduring monument to the brave pioneers of this part of Canada.

The second wrong impression is that I propose this Church of England edifice as a substitute for some general or provincial monument, but this is far from my intention.
I am quite aware that such a memorial can have no national character or significance.
It is a partial scheme in the absence of a general one, not the best absolutely, but the best perhaps which one in my calling and circumstances could undertake, and I am happy to say that the proposition has met with much favor from gentlemen occupying some of the first positions in the country, as will appear when the prospectus is published.

In the last place, it has been imagined that I desire to monopolize the honor of erecting a memorial Loyalist church, so that it shall be the only one in the whole circuit of Quinte's Bay. But this is a mistake, and one which the concluding words of my letter should have prevented, in which I distinctly stated that I did not broach my project "as the only edifice of the kind which should be erected, nor as the only description of memorial appropriate to commemorate those worthy men, but as one whose character
would meet the ideas and wishes of numbers of their descendants." My feeling is that it would greatly help to redeem the national neglect, and add much to the interests of the Bay, if it were dotted round with memorial churches to the U. E. Loyalists, erected by the various Christian bodies to which they belonged. I am, dear sir, quality of its epistle I should think

Salmon Trout. White Fish. Fresh Water Herring, etc.

A quantity of his cabbage should think the family would scarcely form half of them if they did it would be of the species called "Low Dutch." Mr. Editor, I know what the Low Dutch cabbage is but for fear you do not I will describe it. It grows low (not aspiring) is very fleshy quite an appearance; is quite unimpressive, but if you take hold of it is solid, as good cabbage always is, very much surprised as your finger goes through it. I know your correspondents to that class. Low Dutch cabbage is used for anything except to make and to feed to cows; and if you do want out of it it takes an enormous make a barrel. Mr. Editor, maydaisies are no specialty out here, abounds in flowers of all kinds, but cabbage leaves are, for I only see and re-passing occasionally, and do not care to waste ground in trying such trash. I suppose when the old cow refused to be milked and I kicked, that the pail hit the head of and knocked off this "leaf," and been blowing around through the mud and rain ever since, and finally would light on the Pleasant Valley mts. As for that canine that hurt glad to say that it is entirely better, eat deal more than I can say for V. was born with an empty head, and say that it will never fill up. The late "late fall chicken" got its feet one day this winter it was feeling it happened to notice something going behind our barn, and thinking being good to eat it ran out after it, you suppose it was? Why it was "Cabbage Leaf" need not fear about the correspondence away from "Mayday" or myself, as he is not capable. In, Mr. Editor, for the space, I remain, CLEOPATRA.
